State's attorney to examine financials; board brawls

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

In the village of Antioch, brawls are public and held biweekly at the regular meetings of the board of directors. If this were a community that televised its meetings on public access television, locally "Monday Night Football" would be given a run for its money on the first and third Mondays of each month.

The highlight of the latest meeting came when trustee and finance chair Bob Caulfield handed out audits for the fiscal years 2000 and 2001 and announced, "Some items in the financials might need the state's attorney's opinion."

Trustee Dorothy Larson said, "I would like to know what the items are." Caulfield responded that she would have to ask the state's attorney.

Larson, astounded, repeated back Caulfield's statement and added in a raised voice, "We, as trustees, we're not notified about information going to the state's attorney. You can know, but we can't—we who serve on the board."

Caulfield said, "I was asked by the state's attorney to refer all questions to them." He then added that he acted as an individual who came upon disturbing information and not as a trustee, per se.

George Strickland, chief of the criminal division of the state's attorney office, confirmed that his office is "investigating a diversion of money from the Dolly Spiering Fund to determine if there is any criminal activity."

Later Larson said, "I can't believe their arrogance (referring to Caulfield and Mayor Taso Maravelas who has been alluding for months to the possibility of malfeasance within the previous administration) not to discuss sending materials to the state's attorney with the rest of the trustees."

There was no discussion of the audits. Caulfield asked that the trustees review them carefully between now and the next board meeting when they will be discussed.

Caulfield also asked for a motion to remove Tim Wells and Marilyn Shineflug from signing village accounts as a "formality of cleaning up the books." Later Shineflug addressed the board and said, "I have not signed any checks since leaving office and didn't sign that many while in office."

Lakeland Media has made a formal request for copies of the audits per the Freedom of Information Act.

Antioch works to see Howard reinstated

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

"I've gotten more phone calls about Paul Howard than I have about Neumann Homes," said trustee Dorothy Larson. "I would really like to see us take over the Senior Center from Catholic Charities."

This topic was discussed at the regular meeting of the board of directors of the village of Antioch, and Mayor Taso Maravelas said representatives of the village will be meeting with Catholic Charities and that all options would be explored.

Howard was put on paid administrative leave by Catholic Charities last week pending further inquiry of financial irregularities.

It appears these financial irregularities are with regard to the Dolly Spiering Fund bequeathed to the village of Antioch for the Antioch Senior Center. Neither Howard nor Catholic Charities has any direct involvement with the fund.

All village officials, current and previous, agree that Howard has done a wonderful job for the village and is nothing short of an outstanding individual.

George Strickland, chief of the criminal division of the state's attorney office, confirmed that his office is "investigating a diversion of money from the Dolly Spiering Fund to determine if there is any criminal activity."

A memo distributed to the trustees, who also served as part of the previous administration, clarifies the situation.

Attached to the memo is a "memorandum of agreement" signed on March 26, 2001 by Howard, Marilyn Shineflug (mayor at that time) and former administrator Tim Wells. The memorandum stipulates that Howard is to be paid "a lump sum of $20,000 from the monies provided to the village from Dolly Spiering."

Additionally, it says that this compensation will not change unless the council recommends it, and that if Howard is not in the employ of Catholic Charities as director of the Antioch Senior Center (by its choice not his), the village will hire him at his current salary plus the $20,000.

Chamber prepares for election of 3 directors

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

The Antioch Chamber of Commerce and Industry is preparing to elect new members to its board of directors.

Each year, three new directors are elected to a three-year term of office. The board is made up of nine directors. Executive director Barbara Porch said, "We only accept nominations of Chamber members from Chamber members, and each member can nominate up to three people."

Porch explained that not everyone nominated ends up on the ballot. "We call those who have been nominated and ask them if they will accept the nomination," she said. "Some people are already busy with other community obligations and don't feel that they can serve on the board too."

Dee Dee Palmer of State Bank of the Lakes, Kevin Schoudel of Raymond Chevrolet and Curt Miller of Keller Williams are the members whose terms expire. "The people going off the board are welcome to be nominated, and they would be able to serve again," Porch explained.

If elected, those who do accept the nomination will be expected to chair one committee and serve on a second. "We bring a lot of activities to the community over the course of the year," added Porch.

Porch, who has served on the board for eight years, first on the board and then as executive director, said the Chamber office runs very efficiently, and phone calls for various things are done by the office and not by the individual directors.

The ballot will be made of all the people who have both been nominated to serve and have accepted the nomination. Ballots will be mailed out by mid-November, and will be due back to the Chamber early in December. New board members take over in January.

The board members whose terms continue include the following: Bill Ahlers, Tam Alleman, Karen Dunham, Mary Ann Kuhn, Jim Meyer and John Ruffin.

A committee of two people from the board of directors, plus another Chamber member will count the ballots.

Grass Lake- Deep Lake crossroad gets new light

*Advanced video technology expected
to improve traffic flow,
save county money*

By BRENDA BALIN-BEITSCHER
Staff Reporter

In anticipation of the growing traffic needs at the intersection of Grass Lake and Deep Lake roads, the Lake County Division of Transportation has activated a signal system using a new video technology.

The system is one of only two in the county. The first of its kind was installed in Buffalo Grove in March.

Technologically, the signal's sensing device is an advancement from the detector loops typically embedded in roadways.

Tony Khawaja, county traffic engineer, explained the advantages of the new system.

"We use less hardware and infrastructure with the video system," he said. "The detector loops required steel conduit and cable, and we had to dig to locate the cables within 400 feet of the intersection."

The larger the intersection, the more hardware was needed.

The new system requires only four cameras—one facing in each direction—regardless of how many lanes of traffic there are in a given intersection.

The cameras can more accurately measure traffic flow, even at times when road sensors would be covered by snow or otherwise obscured.

Economically, most of the time the cost would be comparable, Khawaja said. The equipment costs a bit more than the embedded loops, but is easier to install and does not require digging up roadbeds. In the case of large intersections, the new technology might be more cost-effective than the detection loops.

The cameras do not record events, and are not intended to be used for law-enforcement activities, such as police cameras in use in some localities. Nevertheless, the cameras can serve some monitoring functions.

"For example, if we get a report that traffic is slow, we can look at the cameras and see what is happening," the engineer noted.

Additionally, the cameras eliminate the need for emergency vehicle sensors, such as those mounted on the top of light poles at many intersections.

The emergency vehicle sensors "spot" ambulance, fire and police strobes, and reconfigure signals to allow the vehicles to pass unimpeded through busy intersections.

The new traffic control devices are part of a $1 million project to reconstruct the county intersection to accommodate expanding traffic volume.

The intersection is at the site of the second Antioch High School building and the Antioch-Lake Villa community center, now under construction, and slated for completion in 2002.

PTO auction will update libraries

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

The PTOs of Antioch Elementary, Oakland Elementary and W.C. Petty Elementary will conduct the third annual Turkey Trot auction on Nov. 17 at Maravela's Banquet Hall in Fox Lake beginning at 6:30 p.m.

This is among the biggest fundraisers held by the three PTOs and the money will be used to update the three schools' libraries. "Now that these three schools are all second-fifth grade elementary schools, the libraries need some updating," said Sue Pingel, who co-chairs the event.

Hors d'oeuvres and a disc jockey are included in the $10 per person entry fee, but beverages are to be purchased from a cash bar.

Pingel said the PTO is shooting high this year and hopes to raise $15,000 or more, a 33 percent increase over last year's effort. She noted that the entry fee only covers expenses, and that the money the PTO makes comes from the auction and raffles.

"The local businesses have been very kind," said Pingel. Getaway overnight stays at the Grand Geneva in Wisconsin, a tour of the state capitol building and an overnight stay in Springfield, and a "party with the pups" at the greyhound race-track are just some of the things being auctioned to the highest bidder.

"There are lots of dollar raffles throughout the evening," Pingel added. "You can still win a turkey for your Thanksgiving dinner."

Other items going on the auction block include an electric power shovel, fishing poles, collectible racecars and a turkey platter with matching salt and pepper shakers.

Classrooms make special theme baskets as part of the silent auction. "Parents usually get into bidding wars over these, because they want something personal from their child's class," said Pingel. The money made from these baskets goes directly back into the individual classrooms.

The raffles and silent auction begin at 6:30 p.m. and the live auction begins at 8:30 p.m. Bob Diemer will be the auctioneer for the live auction.

"We hope that people will stick around after the auction this year to enjoy the DJ," concluded Pingel.

Deep Lake-Grass Lake intersection site of crash

By BRENDA BALIN-BEITSCHER
Staff Reporter

Barely two weeks after a new traffic signal was installed at the intersection of Grass Lake and Deep Lake roads, a collision occurred when a car heading south failed to stop for a red light.

Robert F. Olszewski, 58, of 37337 Fairview Circle, Lake Villa, was heading southbound on Deep Lake Road, when he went through the red light and struck a car driven by Robert W. Zalesny, '63, of 39849 Harbor Ridge, Antioch.

Olszewski's medical condition may have been a factor in the accident.

Zalesny was heading eastbound on Grass Lake Road.

Following the impact, Olszewski's car came to rest on the northeast corner, off the roadway. Zalesny's car was pushed southbound onto Deep Lake Road, and came to rest southbound on the northbound median.

The Lake Villa Rescue Squad responded, and Zalesny was treated and released at the scene, as were his three passengers. A juvenile was among the passengers.

Olszewski complained of bony pain, lacerations and a bump on his head. He didn't remember seeing the red light. When asked, he told police he did not drink, because he has diabetes.

A paramedic stated the driver's blood sugar was low, and he might have been suffering a diabetic reaction at the time of the accident. He was not intoxicated and there was no evidence of alcohol in the vehicle.

He was taken to St. Therese Medical Center in Waukegan.

He was charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident, red light violation and involvement in an accident with injuries. He is to appear at Grayslake Branch III on Nov. 14 at 1:30 p.m.

'The Last Night of the Ballyhoo' opens

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

PM&L Theatre's production of "The Last Night of the Ballyhoo" by Alfred Uhry opens on Nov. 16 at the theater located at 877 Main St.

"This is a play I've wanted to direct for three years," Tom Hausman enthusiastically stated. "I saw it at the Milwaukee Repertoire Theater. We had it on the schedule last year, but it had a long run in Chicago and we lost the rights."

PM&L will be the first community theater to perform this play that is set in Atlanta in 1939.

"There was a large Jewish community in Atlanta during this time period," said Hausman. "The play is somewhat autobiographical with Uhry modeling the northern Jewish man and the southern belle after his mother and father."

Hausman explained that the ballyhoo was a big Jewish festival in the south from the 1920s until about 1950. "This play teaches a great lesson of accepting who you are, and that customs are part of who you are. You have to learn to live with that."

Central characters are members of the Freitag family. Fran Jansta of Antioch plays Adolph, a bachelor. Trish Jansta of Antioch plays his widowed sister Beulah (Boo) Levy. Dianne Hosken of Lindenhurst plays Reba, the widowed sister-in-law.

While Boo is concerned with having her daughter attend the ballyhoo,

Adolph brings home an assistant from Brooklyn who "shakes things up."

Other cast members include the following: Jacklyn Bigalke of Ingleside as Lala; Terry O'Brien of Lake Villa as Joe Farkus; Debbie Beno of Antioch as Sunny, Reba's daughter; and Jay Auffman of Antioch as Peachy Weil.

Play dates and times are Nov. 16, 17, 23, 24, 30 and Dec. 1 at 8 p.m., and on Nov. 18, 25 and Dec. 2 at 2:30 p.m. Tickets are $10 for adults, $8 for students and seniors.

Reservations can be made by calling 395-3055. Box office hours are Monday-Thursday from 5:30-7:30 p.m., Saturday from 11 a.m.-2 p.m. and 90 minutes prior to curtain time on performance dates.

'Born to be drug free'

St. Peter School celebrated Red Ribbon Week by planning activities that carried the anti-drug theme to both students and their family members. Students attached red ribbons to baby pictures and displayed them in the cafeteria as a reminder that they were "born to be drug free."

Daily prizes were awarded to students who did nothing but wear their red ribbons.

Classroom doors were decorated with examples of making the right choices as well as saying no to drugs, alcohol and violence.

Students were allowed to vary from the school's dress code to wear red shirts, to wear uniforms backward to "turn your back on drugs" and wore favorite team jerseys to "team up against drugs."

Parents were given red ribbons to be tied to car antennas as a reminder to "stop, think, don't drive and drink."

The school sends out a special thanks to Julie Cannon and Sharon Meeks for their creative ideas that enhanced the week's activities.

Rose Larsen, a long-time employee of Dr. John Boarini, DDS, called to say the good doctor and all of his assistants got together for dinner.

In addition to the doctor and his wife Nancy, his brother-in-law Jerry Idstein and his wife Mary attended as well as Chris Ashworth, Jan Hassett, Sandy Howell, Rose Larsen and Julie Sitter attended the dinner.

"We've all worked for Dr. Boarini since the '70s," said Larsen. "I think it's unusual to have the same employees for so many years."

Great Northern Bank, a small community bank of seven employees, participated in Vista Health "It's All in the Jeans Day" to raise money for breast cancer research.

The bank reports that its seven employees raised more money per person than other larger financial institutions. Additionally, the bank matched its employees' contributions.

Kiwanis 'cares for kids' in 3 local school districts

By BRENDA BALIN-BEITSCHER
Staff Reporter

In the aftermath of the Sept. 11 tragedies, students in grades K-3 in Lake Villa C.C. District 41, Round Lake District 116 and Millburn School were given aid and comfort in the form of snacks and movies from several local vendors in a project called "Kiwanis Cares for Kids."

After watching the grueling clips of the terrorists' plane crashes, Lindenhurst Kiwanis Charter Member Mel Kahn, 80, found himself unable to sleep. At 3:30 a.m. he turned on his television and watched an Oprah Winfrey rerun featuring First Lady Laura Bush and a psychologist discussing the emotional effects of the attacks on young children.

The psychologist spoke of how young children needed to be comforted.

A member of Kiwanis for 48 years, Kahn recalled the club slogan, "Young Children: Priority One."

"I thought of what we could do to comfort young children," he said.

The next day, Kahn contacted the Disabled American Veterans organization and asked them for a donation of small American flags. The organization committed to sending 6,000 flags, and ended up sending 22,000.

But Kahn didn't stop there. Remembering that the way to a child's heart is sometimes through the stomach, Kahn talked Hostess-Wonder into contributing 2,000 Twinkies.

Former Kiwanis president Ted Summers helped out, going to Schiller Park to pick up the cases of snack cakes.

As a former Lindenhurst resident, now living in Round Lake Beach, Kahn decided he wanted Lindenhurst and Lake Villa and Round Lake area children to all share in the goodies.

Even with his decision to limit the gifts to the youngest school children—those in kindergarten through third grade—there were still not enough sweets to go around. Kahn persuaded Tim Horan, general manager of the Round Lake Beach Super K-Mart, to donate cookies for children in Round Lake School District 116.

But he didn't stop there, either.

Kahn approached Regal Cinemas, based in Knoxville, Tenn. Although the chain has 338 theaters throughout the United States, the company is in chapter 11 reorganization. Nevertheless, they offered to send 2,000 movie passes to Kahn for the "Kiwanis Cares for Kids" project.

When first discussed, the theater group agreed to give passes that would be good until the end of the year. Then the deal was changed so the passes were only good for one month. When the tickets finally arrived, Kahn was chagrined to discover the 2,000 movie passes were only good for one specific weekend, and a near one at that. On the plus side, the passes were good for entire families, rather than individuals.

Kahn decided to break a rule for a good cause, and he duplicated the run of passes, so 4,000 young children in both districts could use them.

The Round Lake Beach Regal opened two of the 18 theaters, and screened "The Grinch Who Stole Christmas" and "Rugrats in Paris" for the young children and their families.

Along the way, it came to Kahn's attention that a number of Lindenhurst children attend Millburn school. Not wanting them to be left out, he contacted Marcus Theaters in Milwaukee and got a donation of 250 "twofer" passes for the Millburn students.

Still looking for ways to offer comfort to children, Kahn got members of the University of Illinois, Chicago psychology department to write letters, specifically tailored for teachers and children, offering ideas on how to deal with the situation and offering children comforting stories to reinforce the theme of caring.

The project was well received. Some second-graders sent letters of thanks to Summers and Kahn.

"Those letters were reward enough for this," Kahn said. "I got more out of this than the recipients."

Chop shop operator negotiates plea bargain

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

Daniel J. Edwards, 42, of 290 North Ave., Antioch, plead guilty in a negotiated plea on one count of possession of stolen motorcycles, and was sentenced to 24 months probation.

Other charges based on the July 25 arrest of the chop shop operator were dropped.

Edwards was originally charged with two counts of possession of stolen motorcycles, and four counts of defacing/altering vehicle identification numbers in an operation he ran out of his home garage.

About $100,000 worth of stolen Harley-Davidsons and parts were recovered, including a 2001 Softail valued at $26,000 that had been fully customized and that had only 800 miles on its odometer.

In addition to motorcycles, frames and parts, police found welding equipment, cutting torches, grinding wheels, hoists and tools suitable for dismantling motorcycles as well as a number stamp kit that is used to stamp numbers into metal were found in a search of Edwards' garage.

Edwards must also pay a $300 fine, perform 200 hours of community service.

Additionally, he is banned from consuming alcohol and must submit to evaluations, and is to have no gang affiliation.

At the time of Edwards' arrest, Det. Sgt. Craig Somerville of the Antioch Police Dept. said he had been investigating the possibility of chop shop activity at Edwards' home for the past three years. Somerville has been tracking other similar cases in Lake and Kenosha counties for five years.

ANTIOCH

DUI

Michael J. Updegraff, 31, of 25603 Hermann, Antioch, was arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol on Nov. 3 at 2:22 a.m. on Rte. 173 at Tiffany Rd.

Police observed his vehicle cross over the double yellow lines with the two left tires. The vehicle then made a right-hand turn into Domino's Pizza without signaling.

Updegraff provided police with a valid driver's license, but he couldn't find proof of insurance. During this process, the officer detected the strong odor of alcoholic beverage on Updegraff's breath.

The officer requested that he perform field sobriety tests with Updegraff agreeing to do so, but the tests were stopped for safety reasons.

Updegraff was arrested and transported to the Antioch Police Dept. where he was issued citations for improper lane usage and DUI. He refused all chemical testing, and was issued additional citations for failure to signal and operating an uninsured vehicle.

Booking procedures were completed and Updegraff was released on personal recognition pending his Dec. 4 court date.

No valid driver's license

Manuel Gomez Arias, 16, of 22 Elm, Fox Lake was arrested for driving without a valid driver's license on Nov. 4 at 8:36 a.m. on Lake St. at Spafford.

Police locked his vehicle traveling 39 mph in a posted 20-mph zone. Gomez Arias was able to provide the officer with proof of insurance, but said he did not have a driver's license. This was confirmed through LEADS/NCIC.

He was arrested and transported to the Antioch Police Dept. where he was issued citations for speeding and for having no valid driver's license.

He was released on proper bond pending a Nov. 28 court date.

He was released on an I-bond, and scheduled to appear in Waukegan courtroom C-402 on Nov. 16.

At first, both suspects denied knowledge of any illegal substance. When police found part of a pipe, the driver produced the other part of the pipe. Miller then admitted possession of a plastic bag of marijuana. Police found a bag with a green leafy substance that tested positive as 0.6 grams of cannabis. The driver was charged with improper lane usage, and both arrestees were charged with possession of cannabis and possession of drug paraphernalia. The youth was referred to the juvenile system. We have new changes for an age-old process

Giving birth was once a private matter that pertained only to the mother and father-to-be and the nurses, doctors, and the man delivering the lunch trays. Now it has gone more public with the aid of "birth assistants."

Although it has been awhile since I last visited the inside of a delivery room for its intended purpose, I am pretty darn sure nothing was ever mentioned about "birth assistants." Breathing techniques, drugs of various forms and unladylike language that may spew from the delivering mom's mouth—yep, all those topics were covered; birth assistants never came up. But now parents-to-be are hiring people to assist them in the delivery room.

I couldn't help but think, "for crying out loud, you are laying with various body parts exposed to every man, woman and child within three blocks of the hospital, why would you want to pay someone to listen to you calling your husband everything under the sun?"

Isn't that what the doctor is for? From my understanding of the subject, the whole purpose of these intruders is to coach you along, rub your feet and apply warm towels to your aching back while you are in the thick of labor and delivery. Okay, that is all well and good, but then I am also wondering, "And exactly where is the father during all this hell?" It seems that the papa-to-be is still present at the event, but these assistants help him to attend to the whims and demands of the mother-to-be.

Someone, somewhere, in their infinite wisdom, decided that there is too much pressure on papa and he needs a support group to fall back on during the process. Hello—he sure as heck wasn't looking for any support group when he was busy getting mommy-to-be in this predicament, and now he is going to whimp out and call in the reinforcements so he doesn't have to bear the brunt of the situation.

Oh I don't think so daddy-o. Besides, mommy-to-be certainly can't call in anyone to relieve her of her birthing responsibilities now can she? I'm not sure, but I have an idea, exactly who it was that came up with this brilliant idea, and perhaps some of you out there agree and have even used these services, but I think it ranks right up there with pet rocks.

JINGLE FROM PRINGLE

It is stressed, in these situations, how important it is to be comfortable with whoever's services you render for this feat—and for anyone who has ever given birth, what part, if any, during the whole ordeal is comfortable, and how can having a cheering section make the situation anymore pleasant?

Besides, it is a known fact that the 43 hours of labor is the easiest part of the whole process. Daddy doesn't need a support group at this stage of the game. Wait a few years until the child grows up and enters the real world. Believe me there haven't been enough support groups invented for the teenage years alone. And I want to know where Mr. and Mrs. Birth Assistant are when the child comes home one day from the mall with every orifice pierced and sporting full body tattoos.

Sometimes, as a human race, we need to step back, examine what it is we are thinking, then hit ourselves over the head until we completely regain our senses and realize how absolutely absurd some of the things are that money can buy.

And so goes another "Jingle from Pringle."

Readers with information for "Jingle from Pringle" should call Lynn Pringle at 395-6364.

Mayor has no response to claim of inappropriate behavior

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

Mayor Taso Maravelas has taken a couple hits about his professionalism in the last few weeks with the latest claim being that his behavior is inappropriate.

Former Antioch community development director Claude LeMere approached the board of directors of the Village of Antioch during the public comment section of the meeting with claims that the mayor acted inappropriately.

He said, "Last Saturday night Mayor Maravelas made a demeaning remark about me to a trustee in Fox Lake (where LeMere now works in the same capacity he had in Antioch). That is inappropriate behavior."

LeMere prefaced his statement by playing a recorded phone message from an Antioch merchant telling him "I miss your enthusiasm." As he approached the board with the tape recorder, village attorney Don Anderson asked whether he intended to tape anything - an odd question as there are no rules against taping public meetings.

LeMere read off a lengthy list of accomplishments he achieved as community development director in Antioch and said, "Given all of the things that I have done in this community and the hours that I've spent, you'll find that my salary was a wash."

He asked Maravelas if he had any comment to which the mayor answered no.

Later LeMere said, "I was going to give the mayor an opportunity to defend himself, but he didn't say anything. I've heard comments like that more than once."

He added, "I don't do back biting. I came to confront the mayor to his face."

LeMere said he was particularly upset because he had done everything Maravelas and the new administration had asked of him over the summer as he transitioned out of Antioch and into Fox Lake. "I did everything they wanted, and now I have to put up with this."

LeMere said he has no plans to take further action, but will consider it if the mayor's comments cause him any professional consequences. "I'm very, very proud of the work I've done in government, and I won't stand for anyone to discredit that."

Village board amends tree ordinance

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

At the last village board meeting, trustees voted unanimously to approve amendments to the ordinance governing "preservation and replacement of trees" without a second reading in order to get the stronger language on the books.

A review of the revised ordinance by Bob Silhan, director of planning, zoning and building prompted amendments to the amendments that were approved in equal manner at the Nov. 5 meeting.

Silhan asked that a developer or owner submit a detailed tree survey and preservation plan at final plat instead of preliminary. His memo noted that it is often years (in the case of Heron Harbor better than a decade) between preliminary approval and final approval.

"As time goes on, trees may have increased in size, or may have died," he said.

He also asked that there be more references to "healthy" trees. "Trees do get diseases and it is not always possible to save them," he added.

The one area where the board refused to change the wording it that the ordinance apply "to all new subdivisions and PUD's (planned unit development) not currently approved by the village board, and may be considered as a condition for approval of any special use or variance submittal."

Trustee Scott Pierce said, "We always have new proposals coming in, so when would we have this ordinance take affect? I think we should just leave it."

Trustees Barbara Porch and Dorothy Larson concurred.

Silhan had been concerned that those with petitions in the works might be unhappy with having to meet new requirements.

Pierce added, "We're already being sued for millions of dollars, what's a couple more?" The ordinance was initially addressed when residents came to the board and asked that an old oak tree in the Woods of Antioch be spared from construction near it that will likely cause its demise.

Showie the money

It was one of those bittersweet moments for Carmel's Kris Schoenberger. Schoenberger, or Showie, as he's known, has been painting the lines and preparing the varsity football field at the Mundelein school for three years.

"It's kind of sad," he said after Carmel thumped Rockford Boylan 35-7 in what could have been the Corsairs' final home game of the season. The only way Carmel would get to host the semifinals of the Class 6A IHSA State playoffs would be if it beats Normal Community High on Nov. 10 and if 10th-seeded Thornton Fractional South upsets second-seeded Richards.

"I'm really pulling for it (another home game)," said Showie. "But it's been a long season. Regardless if we're home again or on the road, I think we have a great shot at winning this thing (the state)."

However the Corsairs fare, Showie's exposure to preparing the field has opened several new doors for the talented and aspiring businessman.

With two years of construction-related classwork at the Lake County Technology Campus under his belt, one of Showie's dreams has already come true at the ripe age of 17.

"It took about two years to plan, but I finally opened my business last week," he said. "I couldn't have done it without the support of my mother (Denise). Tony Manfre also helped tremendously with making me some T-shirts."

While attending the Tech Campus, Showie got good hands-on experience.

"We were taught the fundamentals, like laying preparing walls and hanging dry wall," he said. "At the end of the courses, we get to renovate a house in Round Lake. It was donated to the park district and will ultimately be a teen center."

So far, 'Showie's Home Maintenance'—his company—has had two jobs.

"So far, I've had two jobs," he said. "One was cutting up a driveway and the other is next week—installing a front door on a house."

Showie's business offerings are pretty diverse. Jobs involved include decorative landscaping, painting, tile roofing, snow removal, bedroom remodeling and wallpapering, just to name a few.

For a free estimate, interested customers can call Showie at 614-1328.

"The hard part is when people call, saying I'm only 17—they wonder if I'm experienced enough," he said. "You just have to keep your confidence."

Don't worry Showie. You're only 17 but already well on your way.

Even after graduation from Carmel in the Spring, Showie still plans on preparing the football field.

"I'd love to keep doing that," he said. "Ultimately, I'd like to come back to Carmel and be a teacher."

QUESTION OF THE WEEK:

What is the national high school record for the highest scoring average for a season?

Answer to the 11-2-01 question:
The longest losing streak in high school football was a 10-season, 82-game skid by Glascock County High in Gibson, Ga., that ended two years ago.

Corsairs claim another victim, 35-7

By JOHN PHELPS
Sports Editor

Perception is reality. You can't stop them, you can only hope to contain them.

That's what the Normal Community High School faces when it tangles with the sixth-seeded Carmel Corsairs in Class 6A quarterfinal action Nov. 10 at 1 p.m. in Normal. Good luck.

"They will have 4-5 guys playing on both sides of the ball," said Corsair head coach Andy Bitto. "We know we're going to score some points. We'll just try and take what they give us, spread them out and wear them down, especially in the second half."

Normal, the 14th-seed, which finished 7-2 overall and runner-up in the Big Twelve West at 5-1, has a pretty good quarterback in Dan Murrin.

"He can put it up pretty good," said Bitto. "He threw for over 1,800 yards this season."

On defense the Ironmen play a traditional 4-3 defense, which appeals either way to Bitto.

"They'll be one guy short on the line of scrimmage," he said. "If they switch, we'll have the appropriate counters for it."

Meanwhile, Carmel earned its first-ever date to the quarter's following a sound 35-7 beating over 11th seed Rockford Boylan in Mundelein Nov. 3.

And as the county's leading rusher, senior Eric Luna said, trust is the key ingredient at this stage of the game.

"We know we have the weapons and the workmanlike attitude," he said. "But most importantly, we all trust one another. It took us the entire season to get that. We are very supportive of one another and know if someone makes a mistake, others will be right there to pick them up."

It didn't take long for Carmel (10-1) to set the tone against Boylan.

Pat Adrien took the opening kickoff down the left sidelines 97 yards for a score and Boylan knew it was in for a long afternoon from that point on.

"That was a pretty cool start," said Adrien. "(Eric) Luna and I were joking about it. We said, 'Let's take this one back 90 yards' and set the tone early. I just remember (Brandon) Ziemann got an excellent block in."

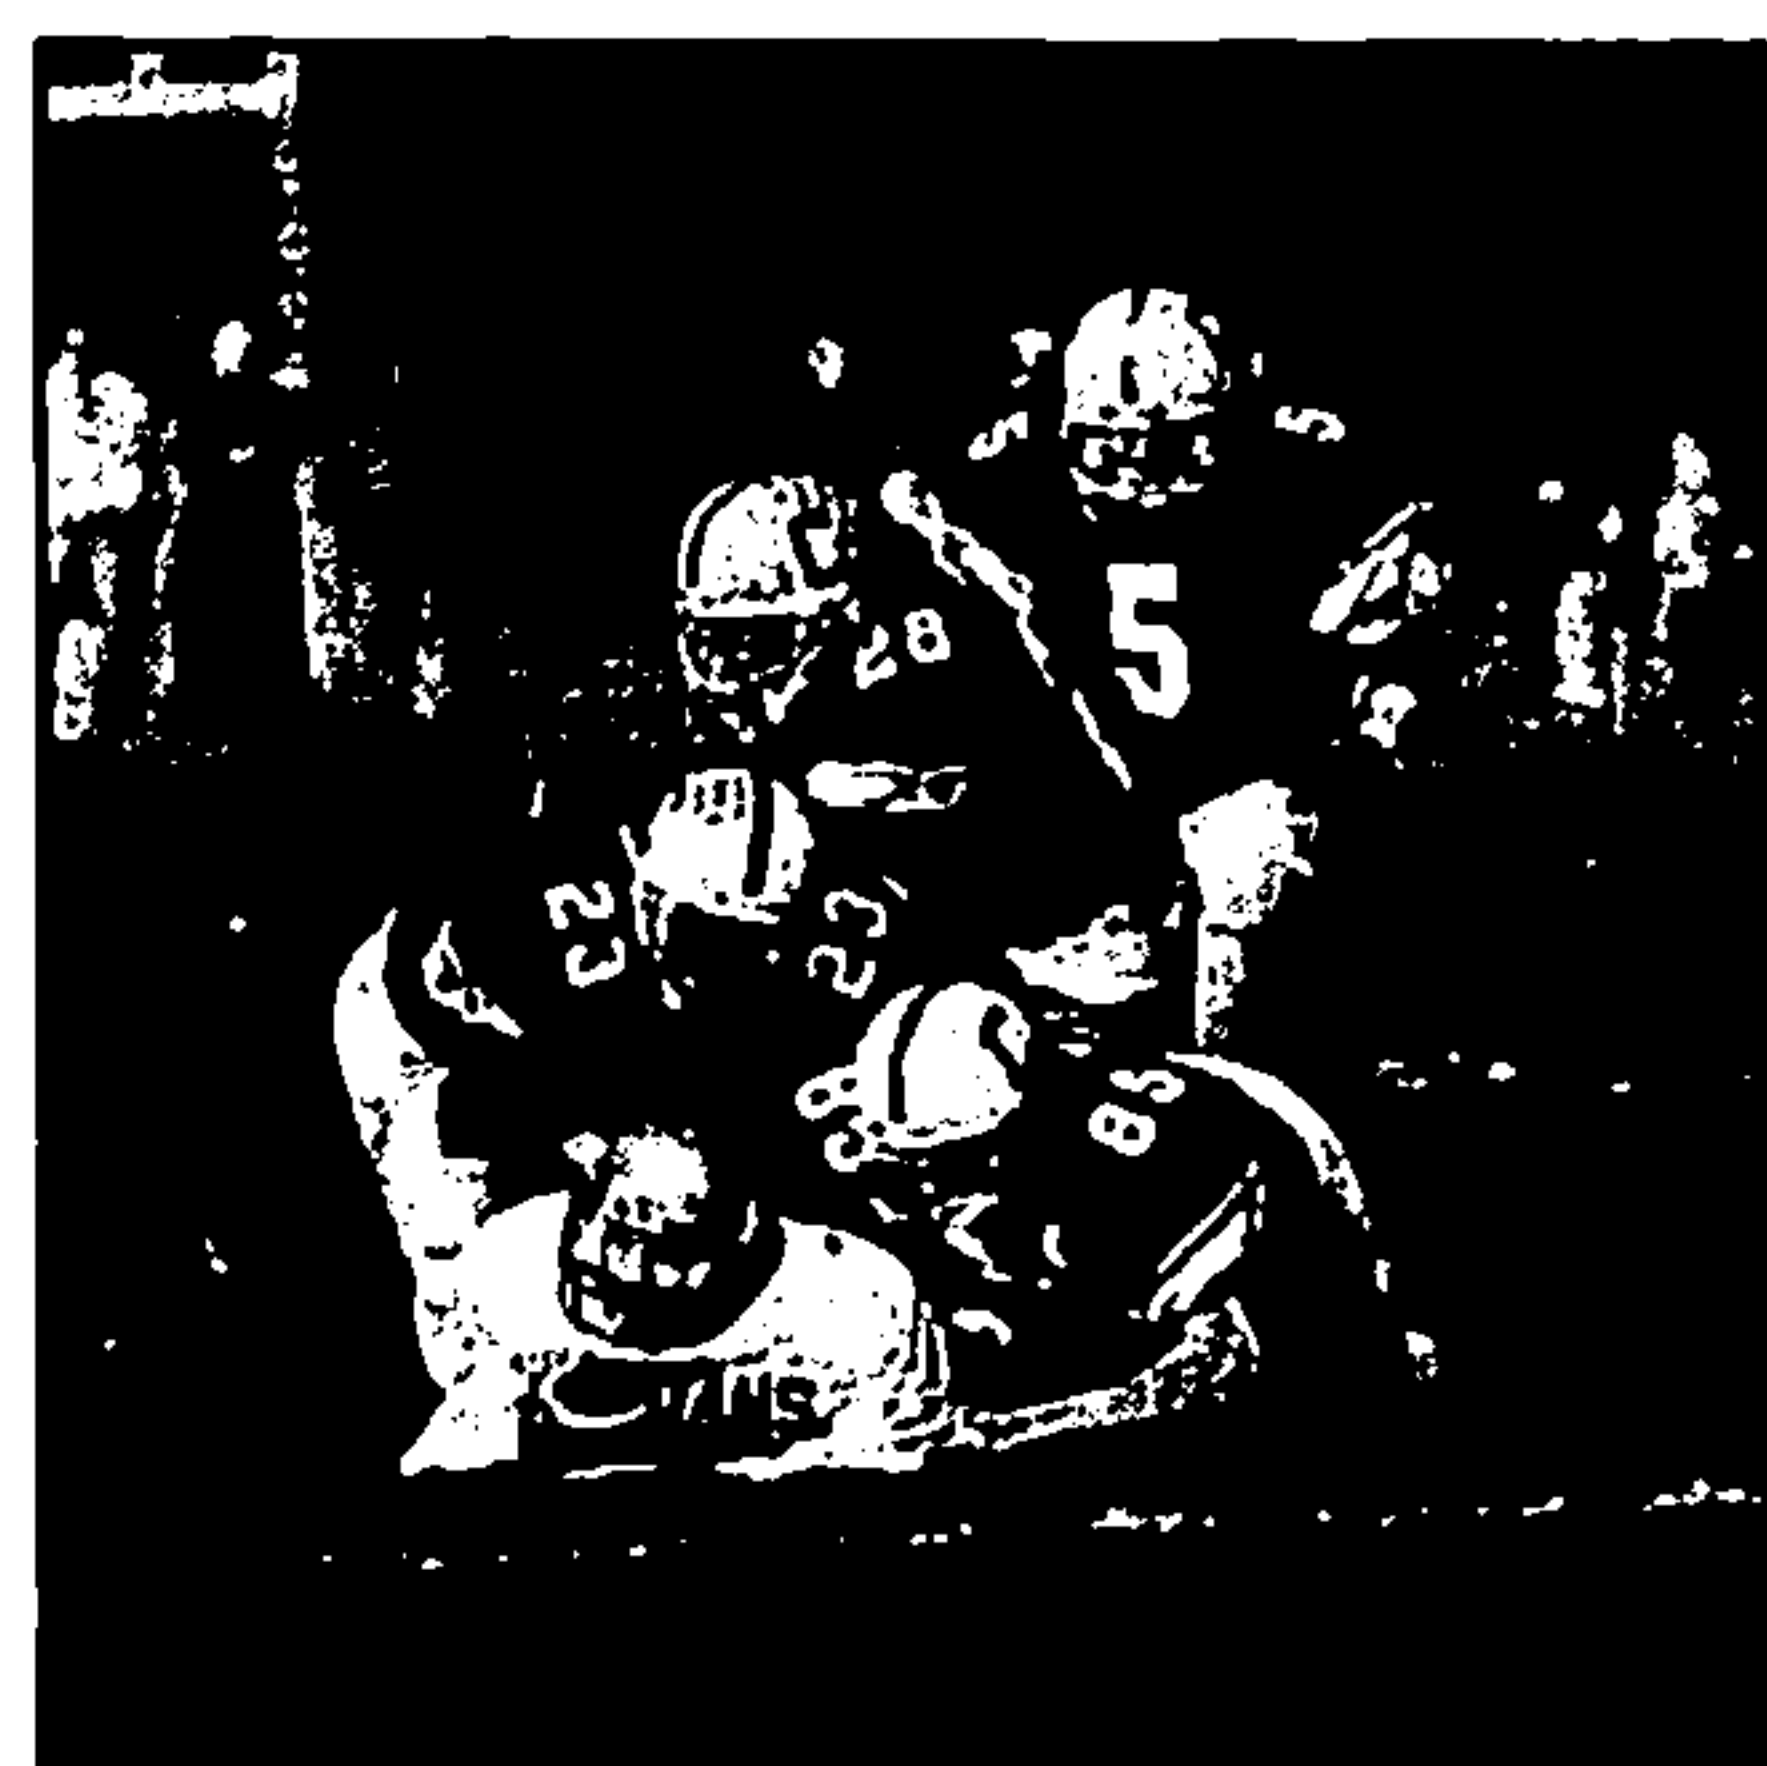

Adrien was seven yards shy of his prediction but somehow consensus is a jam-packed Corsair crowd will most likely forgive him.

And when Ziemann wasn't blocking for Adrien (2 rushes, 25 yards), Elliott Khayat (2 carries, 18 yards) or Luna (14 rushes, 74 yards), he was busy running for 93 yards of his own.

Following the Adrien score, Ziemann raced off tackle 85 yards as the hosts jumped ahead 20-0 after the opening period.

Luna's 15-yard run accounted for the final score in the opening quarter. In the second quarter, Khayat hauled in a 15-yard pass from Matt Roe and Adrien's 19-yard dash in the third quarter completed the scoring.

The defense was also sparkling, with sophomore defensive lineman Ryan Siebert picking off a pass to go along with a fumble recovery. Nathan Duprey, Siebert and Sean Walker also registered quarterback sacks.

Directions to Normal: From Lake County, take Interstate 294 south to Interstate 55 south for about an hour. Then, exit at Business 51 South, or Main St., and go to Hale Street and go right, where you'll be on the south side of Normal High School. Parking

Disappointing finale, but Sequoit boys will be back

North Suburban champs bow out at sectionals; strong contingent back for 2002 season

By WESLEY WARD
Correspondent

For most fall sports the season has come to an end or is in the midst of state competition. Cross country is no exception.

Antioch high school's boys cross country finished another competitive season winning the North Suburban conference and just missing out on a trip to the State finals. However, reaching sectionals is no easy task

'We were pleased that we achieved most of our preseason goals, including winning conference.'

Dave Judson
Antioch boys cross country coach and the Sequoit's efforts did not go unnoticed as six of the seven starters were named All-Conference.

Freshman Chip Leffelman, sophomores Jim Batty, Andy Napier, David Dee and seniors Ryan Moxley and Justin McHaffey all collected North Suburban conference honors.

Juniors David Cook and Mike Addison split time as the seventh runner.

"We were disappointed with losing in sectionals to a couple of teams we felt should have beat," said Sequoit's head coach Dave Judson. "We were pleased that we achieved most of our preseason goals, including winning conference."

Next season looks promising for Antioch who loses only Moxley and McHaffey to graduation. The core of the team remains and has talented runners leading the way. The development of this season's freshman class in the off-season should make Antioch a favorite once again to take North Suburban honors and to advance to state.

Judson also hopes another runner like freshman Leffelman emerges in next year's incoming freshman class. "Hopefully there will be freshman like Chip who can step forward and contribute next season," said Judson.

Leffelman actually proved to be one of the pleasant surprises of the season for Judson. "I was not expecting Chip to contribute so early in the season. I knew he was good, but I didn't realize that he was that good. At times he was the number three runner for us."

Next year's goals are not much different from this seasons. Judson wants his team to be a leader in the North Suburban and also to go one step further and qualify for state.

Antioch does retain the core of its team for next season, however, so do Libertyville and Stevenson who have challenged the Sequits in the past.

Success in the conference next year depends on preparation during the off season. Hard work and experience go along way, hopefully the Sequits can ride this season's experiences all the way to a State berth next fall.

Gebhardt receives honors

The numbers tell you what a great football and baseball player Paul Gebhardt was. What the numbers don't reveal is the rest of the man, the jokester known to his teammates as much for the one-liners that came out of his mouth as for the touchdown passes he cradled in his arms for the Northern Illinois University Huskies.

An All-American in both football and baseball, the Buffalo Grove native still dots the Lawrence record books in both sports.

His three-year football career was simply astounding. He holds the career records for yards receiving (2,394) and receiving yards per game (88.7) and is second on the career list for reception's (149) and touchdown receptions (28). In addition, he holds the season record for catches (67) and is second on the season list for receiving yards (1,036), receiving yards per game (115.1) and touchdown catches (12). He also is second on the list for receptions in a game (13) and yards receiving in a game (227).

After catching 26 passes for 349 yards and five touchdowns as a sophomore in 1976, Gebhardt exploded on the scene in the fall of 1977 by forming a lethal passing combination with quarterback Jim Petran, 1980. He grabbed 56 passes for 1,009 yards and 11 touchdowns and finished fifth in the nation in receiving. He was named to the All-Midwest Conference (MWC) squad and received honorable mention on the Associated Press All-American team.

Next came an even more impressive senior season in 1978. With Gebhardt and Petran leading the way, the Vikings paced the nation in total offense. When Gebhardt caught six passes in a 28-0 win over Lake Forest College, he became Lawrence's all-time leading receiver. Three weeks later in a 35-6 win over Monmouth College; he caught a pair of touchdown passes to set the career record for touchdown receptions.

He finished the season with 67 receptions for 1,036 yards and 12 touchdowns, was fourth in the nation in receiving and 12th in scoring, and received honorable mention on the AP All-American team for the second consecutive year—amazingly, he was left off the all-conference team.

Gebhardt, who signed a contract with the Green Bay Packers in 1979, was a key player during a stellar stretch of football that saw the Vikings go 22-5 in his three seasons.

On the baseball diamond, he had a two-year career and had a truly spectacular 1977 season. He still is 10th on the college's career list with a .339 batting average and second with a .612 slugging percentage, and that season ranks as one of the finest in school history. He hit .402 and set records with 35 runs batted in and 30 runs scored. Furthermore, he is second on the school's single-season list with eight homers, third with 37 hits, and fourth with a .826 slugging percentage.

Gebhardt led the Vikings to a 21-10 record in 1977, the MWC championship, and a berth in the NCAA West Regional and was named to the All-MWC team and the all-district squad and earned second-team All-America honors.

Paul Gebhardt is national sales manager at Star Electronics and lives in Lake Villa.

Grayslake's Pearson runs well at state

By ROB BACKUS
Staff Reporter

Grayslake's Kristine Pearson went into the girls cross-country state tournament at Detweiller Park in Peoria hoping to finish in the top-50 or even the top-25.

Despite a bout of dehydration near the end of the 2.5 mile race, Pearson came extremely close to doing just that.

Pearson finished with a time of 15:37, good for 77th out of 269 runner and just 43 seconds off of her goal of the top-25.

"I'm very proud of her," said head coach Joel Peebles. "She was there throughout most of the race, but at the end she was spent. We had to get fluids into her."

Pearson attributes the dehydration to her nervousness over the race.

"I was really nervous in the morning before the race," said Pearson. "I just didn't drink enough fluids."

Although she didn't reach her goal of the top-25, Pearson was happy with her performance.

"I was a little disappointed but it was still a good experience," said Pearson. "It was a great year overall."

However, when Pearson looks back on this past season, the race that will stick out in her mind is the Schaumburg sectional race.

"(The race) was amazing. I felt great after the race," said Pearson. "After everything I worked for, I made it."

Even though the race at state was the final one of Pearson's career at Grayslake, it will likely not be her last as she plans to run cross-country at Bethel College in Mishawaka, Ind., where she plans to major in Pre-Med for a career in physical therapy.

"She (Pearson) has a good future in college running," said Peebles.

Palombi prize: flying pies

Students cream Antioch principal after winning 'good attendance' competition

By BRENDA BALIN-BEITSCHER
Staff Reporter

Antioch Upper Grade School Principal Eric Skoog took it in the face after his school narrowly lost an attendance contest with Palombi Middle School.

In observance of National School Attendance Week, the students at the Antioch and Lake Villa junior high schools agreed to a competition. At stake: the chance to personally witness the opposing school's principal get "pied" before a whole-school assembly.

Although Antioch made a good showing with 95.9 percent attendance, Palombi took the cake and gave the pie, with a winning score of 96.24 percent.

The state average attendance is less than 90 percent.

Palombi's assistant principal, Pat Flynn, also took a pie.

"Kids want to see their own faculty get hit," Flynn noted.

Each man took three pie hits, as a student from each grade was allowed to fling a plate of whipped topping. Students won the privilege in a raffle that raised about $100 for the Palombi student council.

Skoog whipped the assembly of 1,000 students into a froth by taunting them before the throws.

"I heard that the weakest pie throwers are in Lake Villa," he said.

The first thrower up, sixth-grader Andrew Stein, proved Skoog wrong, as he hurled the plate of goo at the Antioch principal's head at high speed.

Other students who got a chance to cream the principals were seventh-grader Ashley Capps and eighth-grader Brittney Herman.

Nicole Tierney, a seventh-grade language arts and social studies teacher at Palombi, also got in a throw. She represented the faculty, as she pastried Flynn for no particular reason.

"They just wanted to get me," Flynn said later.

The pictures of Patriotism

By HELEN MANSFIELD-CONCEPCION Staff Reporter

*This is my country! Land of my birth! This is my country! Grandest on earth!
I pledge thee my allegiance, America, the bold; for this is my country, to have and to hold.—
"This Is My Country."*

Across Lake County, residents have a new take on life following the terrorist acts of Sept. 11.

For many, the events are as vivid in their minds as if they happened yesterday. Others remark that they feel so disconnected from the events that it seems like a million years ago.

Still others haven't accepted the events at all, unable to process the horror that ensued that day.

There are signs everywhere of companies trying to cash-in on the new wave of patriotism. Car dealers are offering no financing on car purchases, and even Lake County Clerk Williard R. Helander is hoping residents will put their vote where their mouth is and sign up in record numbers during this month's voter registration kick-off.

The theme of the drive is "What's more American than voting?"

Helander said she believes a number of Americans were jaded before the events of Sept. 11 and the things that were important before that day seem not so important now.

A number of counties across the United States have reported an increase of the number of marriage license applications, especially in areas where military service members are shipped out. Helander said her office hasn't experienced any sort of increase, even with Great Lakes Naval Base located in North Chicago.

"Our numbers usually fall off after Labor Day, so we're about where we usually are," she said.

Day is done, gone the sun, from the lake, from the hills from the sky; all is well, safely rest, God is nigh. "Taps."

Tammy and Rob Beatty of Lindenhurst consider themselves patriotic Americans. After the events of Sept. 11, the couple painted the garage of their home at 2101 Burr Oak to resemble an American flag.

"I had a friend who was a veteran who died that week and my grandfather was a World War II veteran, so it just seemed like the right thing to do," Beatty said.

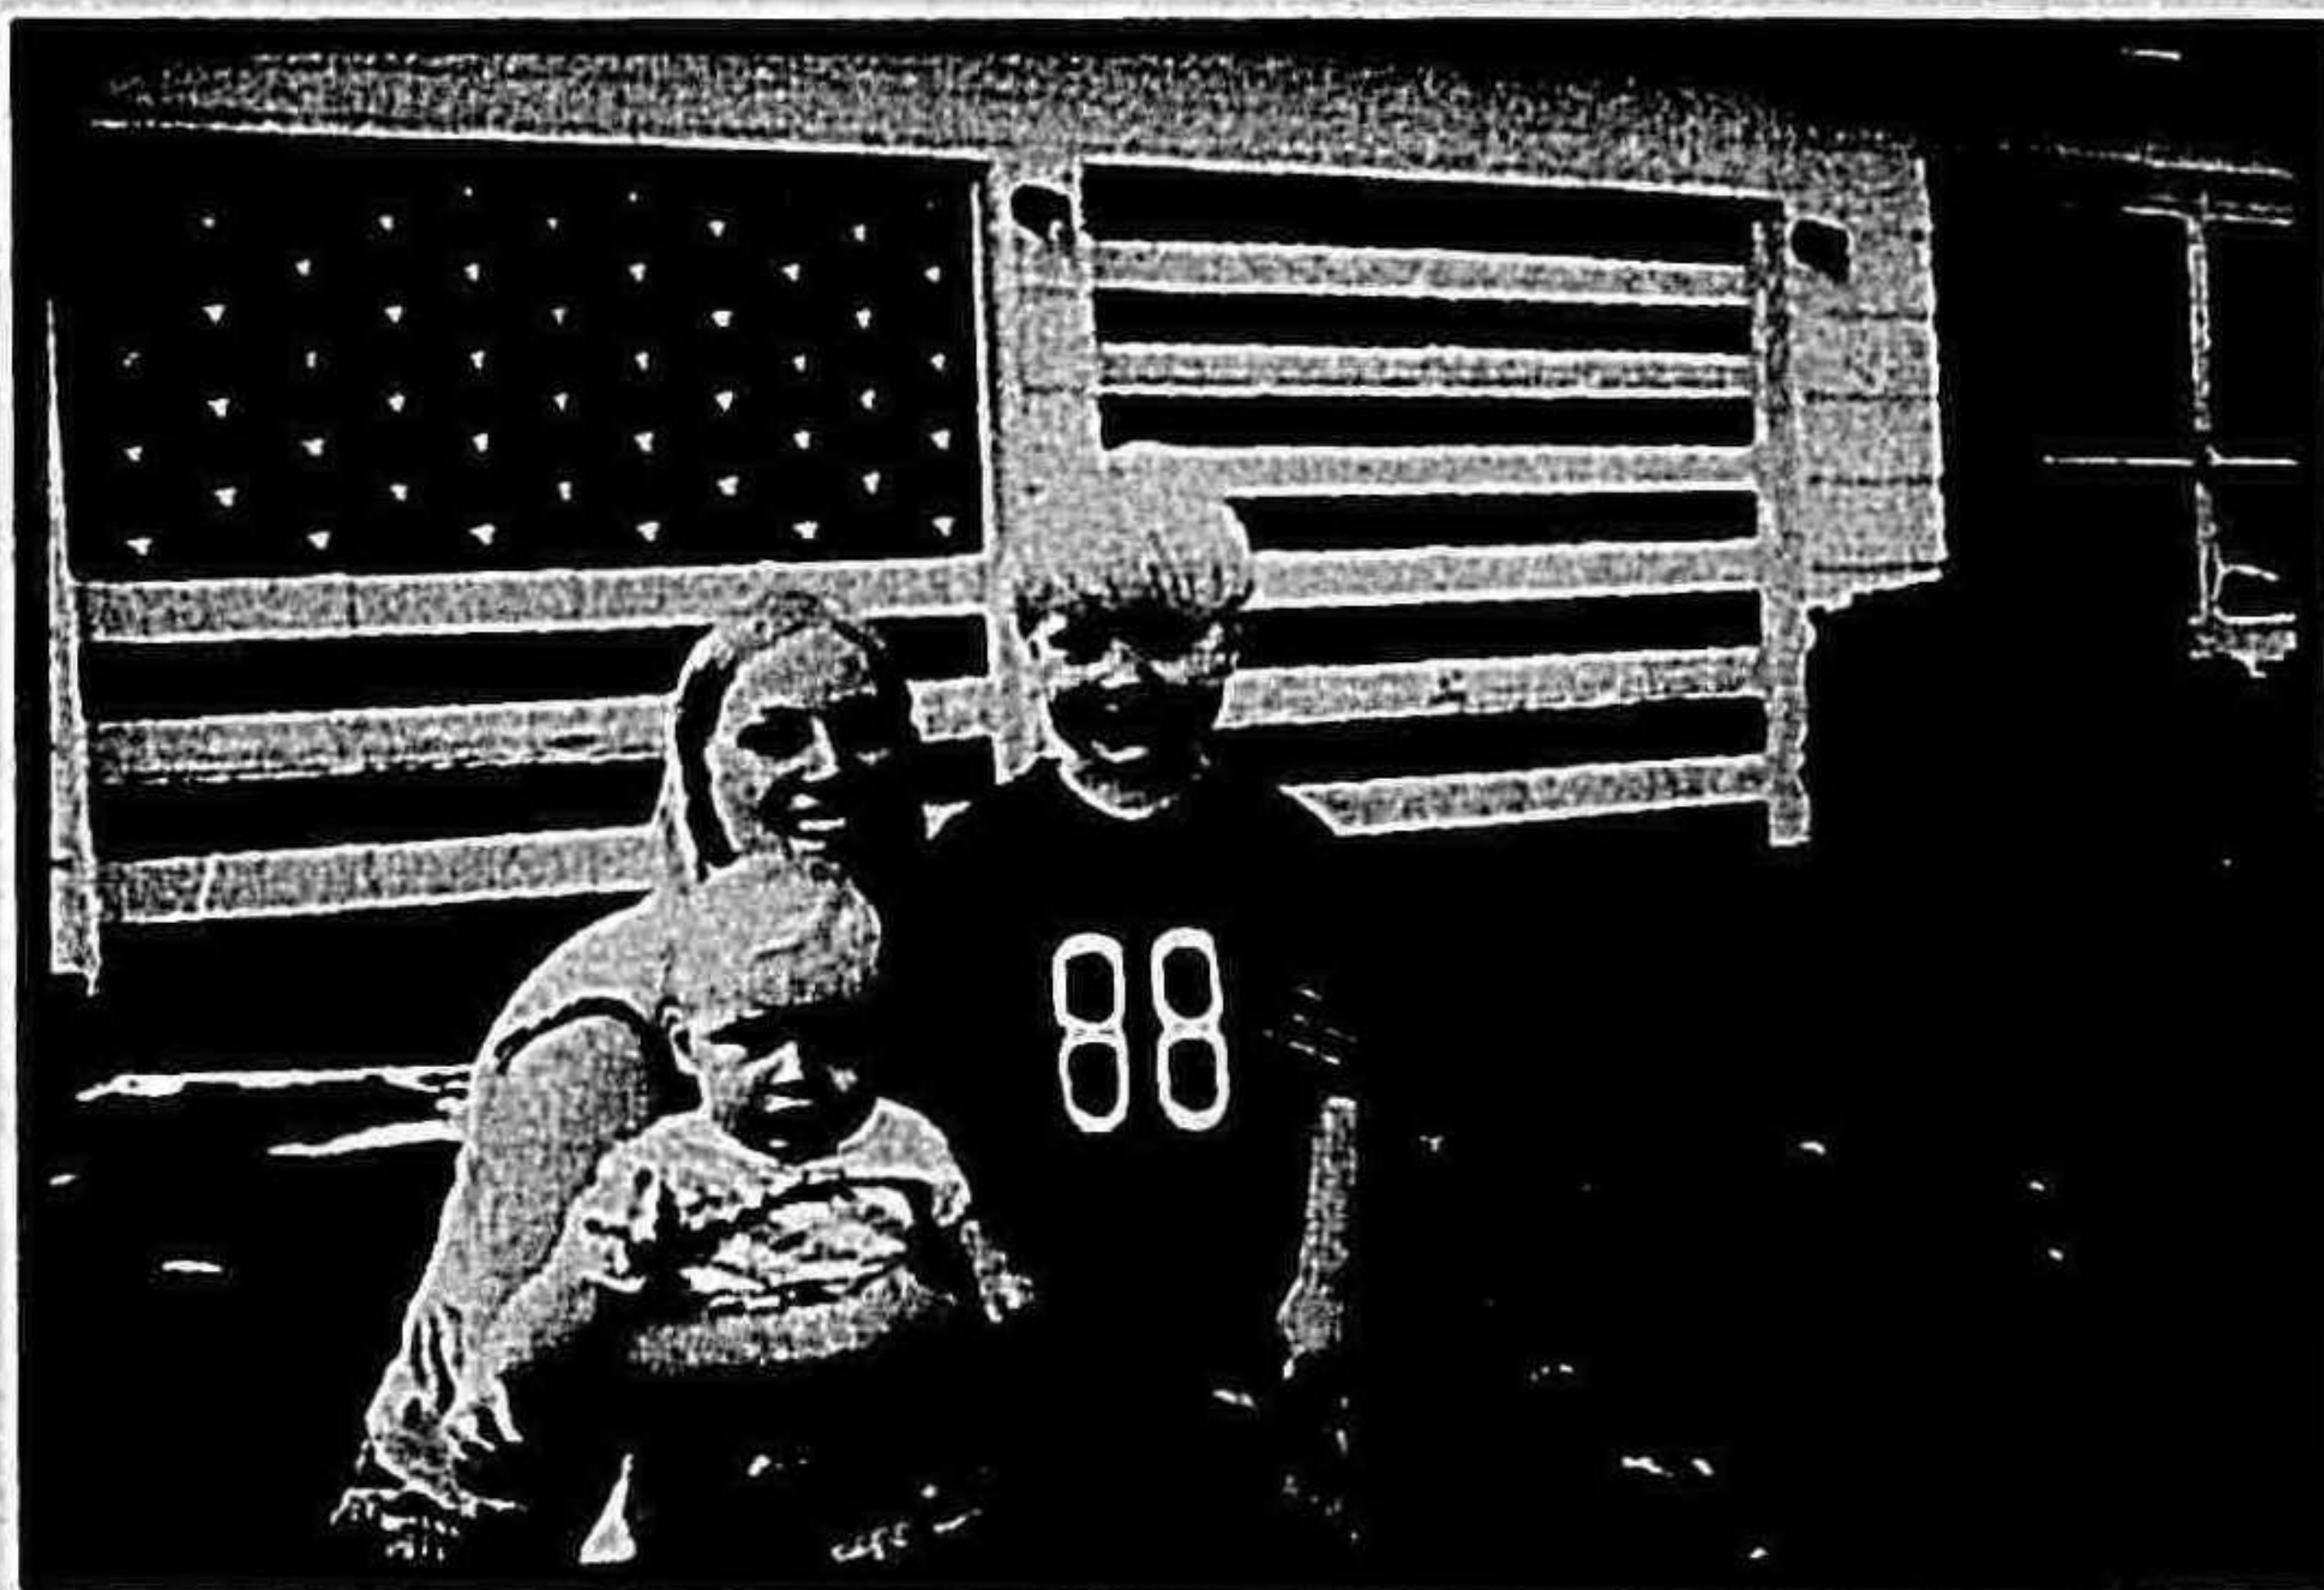

He said his neighbors were all in favor of the project, a number of them even rolled up their sleeves to help.

"It was good how it brought out new neighbors that we hadn't met yet," he said.

The couple plans to keep the flag on their garage and has already touched it up a couple of times.

O beautiful for heroes prov'd, in liberating strife, who more than self their country lov'd, and mercy more than life. America! America! May God thy gold refine, till all success be nobleness, and ev'ry gain divine. "America the Beautiful."

Bob Wegge, past commander of the Grayslake Veterans of Foreign War Post 2245 and current commander of the American Legion Post 659, said he is pleased by the current wave of patriotism.

"I'm happy to see how the country has come together," he said. "I was too young during Pearl Harbor, but our country obviously came together through it."

Unlike in a lot of communities, a number of Grayslake veterans are members of both the VFW and the American Legion.

Due to the requirements in joining each organization, Wegge acknowledges that there is sometimes animosity between the two groups.

"November 9th and 10th both groups will be out selling poppies," Wegge said.

As for the ongoing military conflict the United States finds itself in, Wegge said it causes "a conflict in my mind."

"Muslims and Christians both descend from Abraham," he said. "If you look at it that way, we're brothers fighting each other. You have to ask 'why are we doing this', but in no way should we give up our freedoms."

Families invited to host recruits for Thanksgiving

Adopt-a-Sailor program now in 20th year

Members of the local community will once again have the opportunity to host a sailor in their homes for Thanksgiving. The Great Lakes is again sponsoring the annual Adopt-a-Sailor program.

For more than 20 years, recruits away from home for the holidays have been invited to spend the day with families or groups who graciously open their homes and hearts. This year, nearly 4,000 recruits will be available to take advantage of this hospitality.

The Adopt-a-Sailor program is beneficial to recruits as well as the host family. Recruits get to spend time away from the pressures associated with training, enjoy a home-cooked meal and relax in a stress-free environment. In turn, the host family gains some measure of satisfaction from making the holiday enjoyable for someone far from home and their loved ones. For some families, hosting recruits for the holidays is as much a family tradition as having turkey for Thanksgiving dinner.

There are some simple requirements for the host families or groups. First, for general hosting, there is a two-recruit minimum and four-recruit maximum. The recruits must stay within a 50-mile radius of Great Lakes.

Recruits must be picked up at Recruit Training Command between 7 and 8 a.m. for large groups and organizations and between 9 and 10 a.m. for general adoption. Recruits are not allowed to travel on their own. All recruits must return to their assigned barracks by 8 p.m., so they will need to be back at Recruit Training Command by 7:30 p.m.

If you wish to participate in this program, please contact the Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes Public Affairs Office at 688-7837. The deadline for submitting an adoption request is 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 16.

Prior to entering the Recruit Training Command main gate, all persons must be on the Adopt-a-Sailor access list and provide proof of identification to security personnel.

Guitarist/vocalist Jerry Woods started his first band at the age of 6. Since then, his band has undergone a variety of personnel changes but his passion for music has remained intact. In 1990, Woods met Jon Hiltibran, who joined the band as bass player and vocalist. And in 1991, Lisa Chester added female vocals and background percussion to Woods' band. After enduring yet a few more personnel and name changes, the three of them formed October Elsewhere in 2000 and released their first album, After August Ends (available at their web site, www.mp3.com/OctoberElsewhere).

Carlos Paraskevas joined the band as drummer immediately after completion of the album.

October Elsewhere began playing live this summer at Poor Richard's Pub and Eatery, Gurnee, and is looking to add other venues. Their original music is guitar-based rock with musical influences ranging from Badfinger to Pink Floyd to Alice in Chains. To fill out their live sets, October Elsewhere performs a variety of covers from classic rock and many of today's artists. Some of the music performed includes songs by artists such as Sheryl Crowe, Melissa Etheridge, Staind, Harvey Danger and, of course, the Beatles and Badfinger. The lead vocals are split primarily between Woods, Hiltibran and Chester, featuring Paraskevas on a couple of songs.

The band is also currently working on their second album, to be released in 2002 on mp3.com. Visit www.mp3.com/OctoberElsewhere to contact the band or for more information on their music and upcoming show dates.

Screams of laughter fill theater at 'Monsters, Inc.'

There were no screams of the blood-curdling variety brought out by the not-so-scary monsters of "Monsters, Inc.," though the movie was clearly a scream.

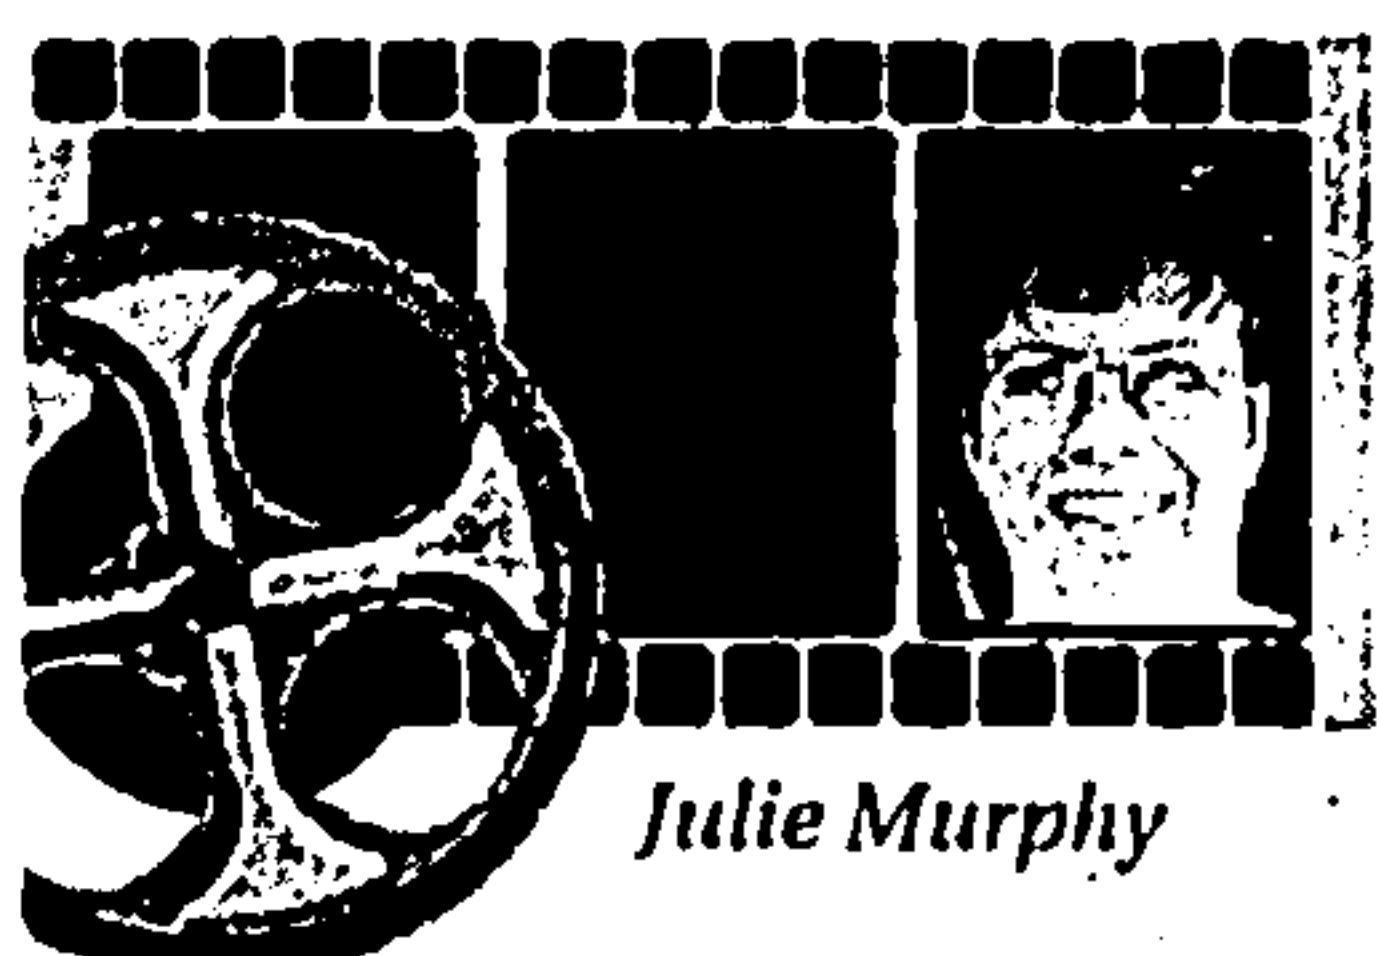

Once again Pixar has created an animated picture with an outstanding cast, great writing, an intelligent plot complete with twists and suspense, and an excellent "short" to set the stage for the main feature.

The setting is a city of monsters that runs off of an energy supply created by children's screams. Monsters, Inc., the power plant, employs monsters of every size and shape to visit the closets of children around the world as they try to fall asleep to bottle this powerful energy.

There are certain perils attached to scaring the children, as they are toxic to the monsters. Even the touch of a sock or a toy requires a decontamination process similar to that of dealing with nuclear waste.

Adding to the sense of urgency is the fact that there is an energy crisis. To help overcome this, some monsters choose to take risky chances to collect more energy.

movie review

The monster metropolis is turned upside down when Boo (voiced by a little girl named Mary Gibbs), a child from the human world, hitches a ride to the monster mash on the back of Sully (Mr. James P. Sullivan, voiced by John Goodman). Over the course of the movie, Sully and his scare assistant Mikey (Mike Wazowski, voiced by Billy Crystal) learn what we all know: children are just little monsters and nothing to truly fear. Each actor was perfectly cast for the voices of the monsters they characterize. Goodman, the big loveable lug that he is, is Sully. No one could better portray the wisecracking, slightly neurotic Mikey than Crystal.

Steve Buscemi is the voice of the only truly unnerving monster, Randall Boggs, a chameleon-type monster that slithers and blends into every setting. In typical fashion, Buscemi's character is just a little off and a little unsettling.

Jennifer Tilly was fine as Celia, but Celia's really outstanding characteristic was her rattlesnake hair. While some wear their hearts on their sleeves, Celia wears hers on her head.

James Coburn's voice makes him sound like he should be a company head, and is wonderful for that part as the "crabby" Henry J. Waternoose.

Pixar is unrivaled in its ability to put together an outstanding computer animated film. More than one Hollywood studio, animated or not, would benefit from taking lessons from the makers of "Monsters, Inc." The back of the power plant where the closet doors are stored, and through which the monsters must enter the children's rooms, was created to resemble the back of a dry cleaner's shop that has collided with a roller coaster. This ingenious set allows for chill-packed chase scenes capable of causing vertigo.

In short, the movie combines all the right elements. There are good and bad guys (one who is completely reprehensible), action, adventure, some romantic love (between two monsters) and a warm-hearted reason for a happy ending.

This is a movie that both adults and children will enjoy. It earns four and one-half popcorn boxes for holding to the excellence of "Toy Story" and its sequel "Toy Story 2" and "A Bug's Life."

'Fifth of July' opens Nov. 9 at CLC

Talley family returns in fall production

The College of Lake County (CLC) theater department's fall production, "The Fifth of July," will open at 7:30 p.m. in the Studio Theater on the Grayslake campus. The production will play Nov. 10, 15, 16 and 17.

Playwright Lanford Wilson's "Fifth of July" again takes up the story of the Talley family, the subject of Wilson's earlier plays, "Talley and Son" and "Talley's Folly." The setting of this production is the family home where the family and friends gather to celebrate Independence Day, scatter Uncle Matt's ashes, deal with the aftermath of Vietnam and face an uncertain future.

The CLC production is directed by English and theater instructor Eibhlin Glennon. Tickets are $8 for the general public and $6 for CLC students, alumni and seniors. Call 543-2300 for tickets and information.

ItsDeductible assigns values

This year the average single taxpayer will receive a $300 tax credit check from Uncle Sam. What most Americans do not realize is that if they properly valued their non-cash donations to charity, they could easily save another $300 in taxes this year.

ItsDeductible (patent pending) is an easy-to-use software program that determines and tracks the proper fair market value of donations, while maximizing taxpayer savings. Properly valued, the average itemizer's donations would result in an average annual "tax savings" for $526.20 (applying an average 31 percent combined federal and state tax rate).

"The Bush tax credit is at the center of attention right now. What taxpayers need to know is that by correctly calculating the fair market value of their non-cash donations, they can easily receive an additional $300 credit when they do their taxes every year," said Carey Rademacher, Vice President of Business Development of ItsDeductible. "ItsDeductible compiles annual surveys of consignment and thrift stores to help people accurately and easily value their in-kind donations, maximizing their tax savings.

Valuing donations is different because charities do not set values. Donors are supposed to do that, but most people have no idea what the fair market value of their gift is worth.

Assuming "good" condition, following are some surprising valuations, by ItsDeductible of commonly donated items (2001 values): women's dress $35; men's suit $95; boy's jeans $10; girl's sneakers $8; can opener $7; stuffed animal $6.

These same items are often seen at garage sales for a fraction of their fair market value. Therefore, in most cases, selling items at a garage sale is a far worse financial decision than donating the item at the proper fair market value.

ItsDeductible retails for $29.95 and is available by calling 800-976-5358 or by download at www.ItsDeductible.com.

Theater favorites return

'Annie Jr.' presented by Waukegan Community Players

Waukegan Community Players will present "Annie Jr.," a condensed version of "Annie" from the Broadway Junior Collection. The play involves 32 children/youth ranging in age from 9-16 residing in Waukegan, Wadsworth, Gurnee, Gages Lake, Libertyville, Hainesville and Highland Park.

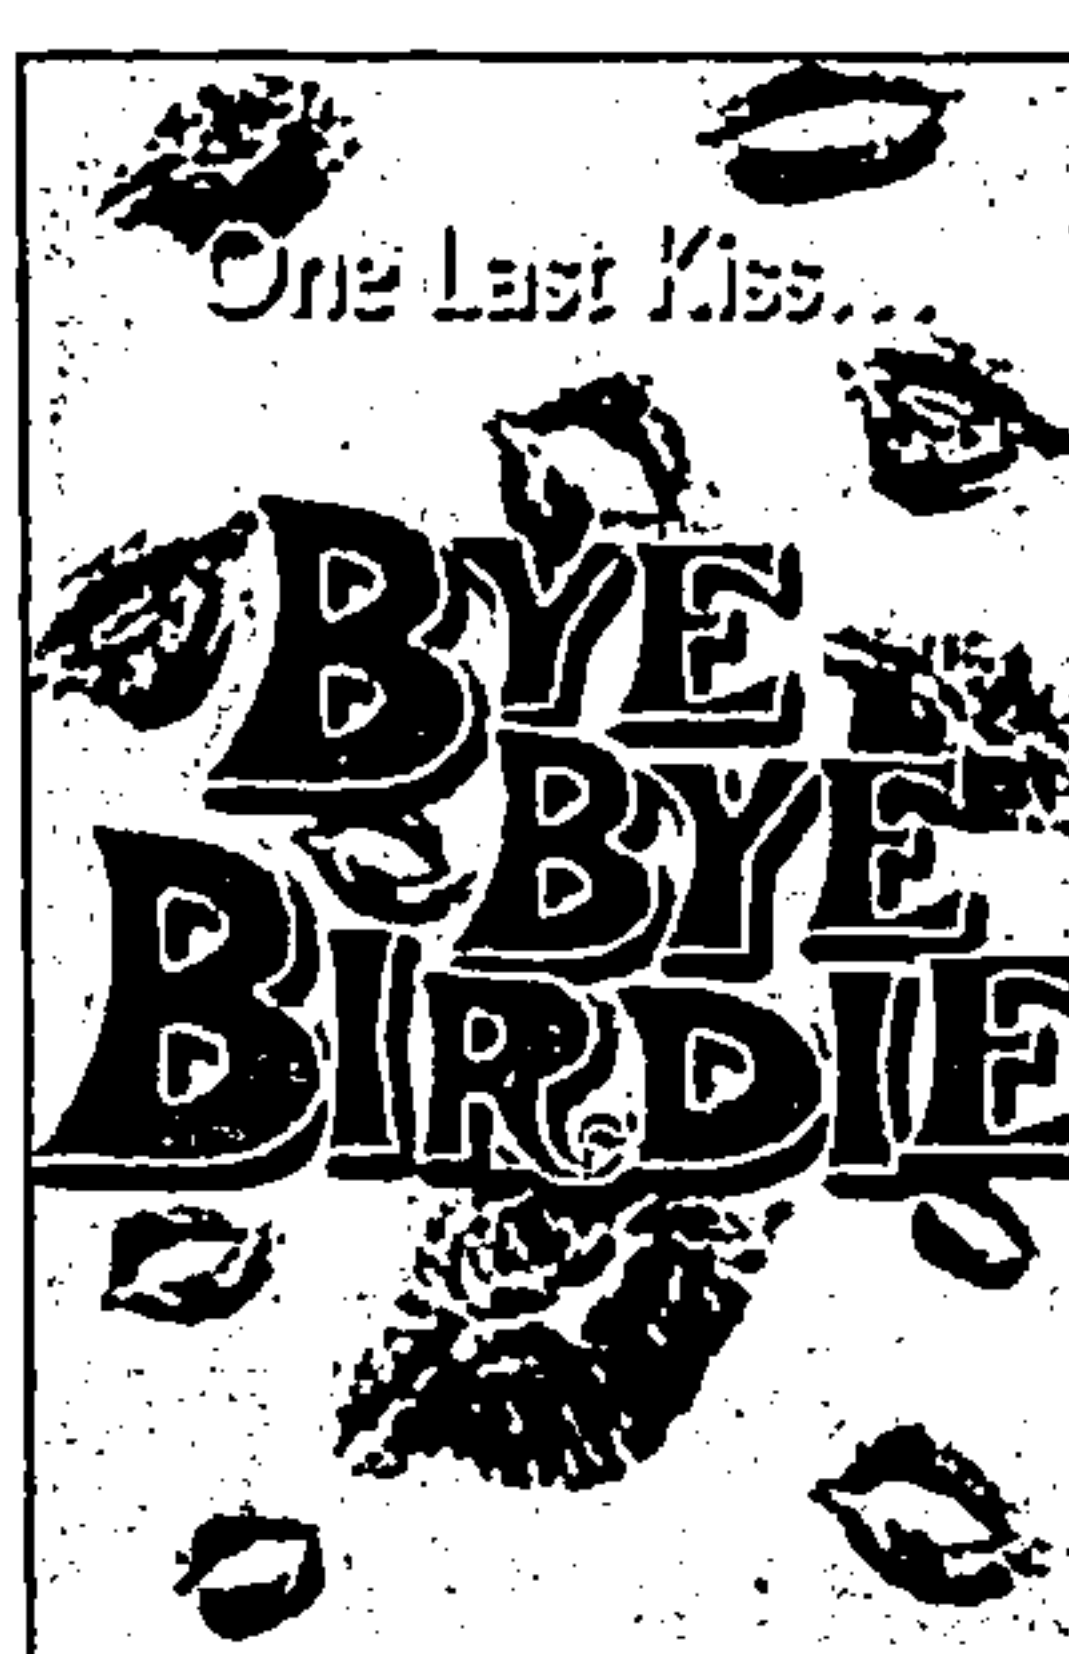

Jaclyn Hergott, who portrays Annie, is a 10-year-old from Highland Park. Two years ago, Hergott was offered the part of Kate (an orphan) and first understudy to Annie in the national tour of "Annie." She had to decline the offer due to the length of the tour. Her strong singing voice has offered her many appearances throughout the Chicagoland area singing, "The Star Spangled Banner."

Co-directed by Sherry Fisher and Payge Whipple and choreographed by Mary Abbot, "Annie Jr." will be performed at Provena St. Therese Hospital, 2615 Washington St. in Waukegan. Celebrate National Children's Book Week

Help kids get carried away by reading Nov. 12-18

Nov. 12-18 marks the Children's Book Council's 82nd observance of National Children's Book Week. Phenix & Phenix Literary Publicists supports this year's theme of "get carried away...READ" by offering the following exciting children's titles:

The Calico Buffalo

In the tradition of Aesop's fables and stories like "The Jungle Book" and "The Lion King," a beautifully illustrated new children's book aims to teach children the importance of diversity, and the tragedy of exclusion of any kind. Written by EJ Stapleton, with full-color illustrations by India Baldwin, "The Calico Buffalo" brings this new tale to the American Southwest.

Alistair on Safari

Carrot-topped Alistair is bored with the monotony of daily life - same books, same scenery, same chocolate chip cookies - that is, until he receives a letter from his Uncle Max inviting him on an exciting photographic safari in a faraway land. Professional photographer

Amanda Lumry captures the beauty of animals in the wild at a South African game reserve and mixes them with delightful children's illustrations for a wonderful interactive look at animals in the wild, from predators and prey to the behavior of animals in their natural environments - what they eat, how they travel and why they look and act the way they do. It's a great way for any child interested in animals and adventure to learn more about nature and conservation. There's even an e-mail and web site at the end of the book for curious readers who want to ask Alistair more questions about his adventures in South Africa.

The Gun Lake Adventure Series

Teaching your children about disabilities just got a little easier thanks to Johnnie Tuitel (pronounced "tute") and The Gun Lake Adventure Series. The sleepy Michigan town of Gun Lake is awakened to adventure when 12-year-old Johnnie Jacobson moves to town. Jacobson leads a group of friends on adventures from the mystery of the deserted McGruther barn and uninhabited Blackbird Island, to the arrest of a stranger searching for his identity. But Jacobson is no ordinary hero. Jacobson, who has cerebral palsy, leads these adventures from his wheelchair. The uncommon hero of The Gun Lake Adventure Series, a group of four books with the fifth due this fall, teaches young readers how to overcome adversity and treat people with disabilities. Author Johnnie Tuitel knows his subject well; the adventure series is based on his experiences growing up with cerebral palsy.

Registration open for spring Lakeshore Marathon

Organizers have announced that online registration has officially opened for the Lakeshore Marathon, to be held April 21, 2002 in conjunction with Earth Day. In keeping with the event's focus on environmental awareness, registration will be completely paperless and accepted exclusively through the Lakeshore Marathon web site at www.lakeshoremарathon.com.

The Lakeshore Marathon aims to provide runners with inspiration by combining the shores of Lake Michigan with Chicago's famed parks and breathtaking skyline. The course is carefully designed to give participants some of the best of Chicago's grand expanse of open green space, scenic lakeshore, and architectural landmarks. The Marathon begins at 7:30 p.m. April 21 at the Chicago Museum Campus. The museum campus is directly accessible by public transportation and is near public parking as well as Chicago hotels and attractions.

The Lakeshore Marathon is a fast and predominantly flat, 26.2-mile loop course (skinny oblong really), closely following Chicago's shoreline and park system. Running through Burnham, Grant and Lincoln Parks, the course proceeds north on the Chicago lakeshore to the historic Edgewater neighborhood before heading back to the start. With an emphasis to personal growth and environmental awareness, this event is appropriate for all levels of marathon runners. The course will be an USA Track and Field Certified Marathon Course and as such is a Boston Marathon Qualifier.

Seeking kids who love to cook

Jewel-Osco and Pillsbury invite kids who like cooking to enter the upcoming Jewel-Osco/Pillsbury Kid's Bake-Off Contest. Twenty youngsters will be chosen to show off their cooking creativity at the March, 2, 2002 contest at the Kohl Children's Museum in Wilmette. The youngsters' tasty creations could be their ticket to great prizes, including a grand prize $2,500 U.S. Savings Bond.

Children ages nine to 13 are eligible to participate, and the twenty contestants will be randomly selected from all the entries submitted. Entry forms with complete contest rules are available at participating Jewel-Osco stores, or may be requested via phone 949-851-6313 or e-mail tmccemail@aol.com. Participants must indicate the recipe they would prepare at the Bake-Off competition.

Recipes must use at least one eligible Pillsbury, Green Giant, Old El Paso, Hungry Jack or Progresso product and at least three other ingredients and must be able to be prepared, start to finish, in one hour.

Preparation methods can include baking, stovetop cooking, microwaving or assembly of ingredients that don't require heating such as salads. The deadline to enter is Dec. 14, 2001.

Jewel-Osco/Pillsbury Kids' Bake-Off contestants will prepare their recipes at mini-kitchens featuring new GE ranges set up at the Kohl Children's Museum. The children will work independently to cook their recipes, although Jewel-Osco and Pillsbury will provide a helper for each youngster to assist with such as handling hot pans or opening jars. A panel of judges will rate the recipes for taste, appearance, preparation and creativity.

The grand prize-winner from the Jewel-Osco/Pillsbury Kids Bake-Off Contest will win a $2,500 U.S. Savings Bond, second place is awarded a $500 U.S. Savings Bond and a $100 U.S. Savings Bond will be given to third place. Additionally, everyone wins because each of the remaining 17 contestants will be presented with a $50 U.S. Savings Bond.

Visit the Pillsbury Kids Bake-Off web site at www.kidsbakeoff.com for more information.

J.J. Tobolski, from Chicago, prepares his "Supreme Tacos" during the 2001 Kids Bake-Off contest Illinois state finals.

The faces behind the aprons

More than ever, kids are taking an interest in cooking. In fact, today more than 61 percent of kids are spending time in the kitchen helping prepare meals for their families. The Pillsbury Kids Bake-Off Contest acknowledges this trend and celebrates kids who cook.

These talented kid cooks have come from across the country to share their winning recipes during the National Finals at SeaWorld. Here are some interesting facts on the finalists:

- Cooking appeals to both boys and girls. The 33 finalists are almost evenly divided, with 18 girls and 15 boys.
- More than half of the finalists will select a charitable organization that helps children to receive their matching donation if they win a prize. The second most popular charity of choice benefits animals.
- Kid cooks don't only make treats but whip up family meals, too.

• According to our kids, cooking is a family activity. They credit parents, including dads and grandparents, for encouraging them to cook and sharing pointers for success.

• Finalists' recipes must use an eligible Pillsbury ingredient. The most popular item used is Pillsbury Refrigerated Crescent Dinner Rolls and the second favorite is Old El Paso Thick 'n Chunky Salsa.

• The finalist traveling the farthest to participate in the 2001 national finals was Shari Iha, from Pearl City, Hawaii, while Kristin Haverhill of Umatilla, Fla., made the shortest trip.

The Illinois state finalists' for the 2001 Bake-Off came from the Chicagoland area. Krystan Chmelovski from Naperville, entered "Fluffy Peanut Butter Bars" as her recipe. "J.J.'s Taco Supreme" carried Jerome (J.J.) Tobolski of Chicago to the state finals.

This is Veteran's Day 2001

Sunday, Nov. 11, is Veteran's Day. This year, 2001, it comes exactly two months after the terrible terrorist attacks on homeland soil, and it comes during a new war. Soon we will have a new set of veterans.

With this in mind, and with the spirit of unity among the states, the Suburban Fine Arts Center (SFAC) would like to make this Veteran's Day special with the healing power of art.

Keep in mind the SFAC has a special connection to the past and future with its new building, Highland Park's American Legion Hall, saved from the wrecking ball for creative reuse.

On Sunday, Nov. 11, to honor the veterans and to form a link with the past and future, all children in the community are invited with a parent or a significant adult to come to the (old) art center to create an American flag. The SFAC is having artists, teachers and high school students draw American flags and tribute flags to past wars. The children will color these flags using a variety of materials to make their own unique expression.

All flags will be displayed, completely covering the windows of the current SFAC building, the windows at the former American Legion Hall and in the First Bank of Highland Park.

The Suburban Fine Arts Center is located at 1913 Sheridan Rd. in Highland Park.

Now is the midway point of the NFL season. After eight weeks, the league has seen many surprises from both underdog teams and unexpected players.

The top fantasy quarterback at the half-way mark (rankings are based on both yardage and touchdowns) is Dante Culpepper. Despite a very disappointing start by the Minnesota Vikings, Culpepper has proven to be a top notch fantasy quarterback in any league. Not only does he throw for big yardage and toss touchdowns consistently, he also runs in a lot of scores, which counts for extra in most leagues. Rounding off the top ten are (in order): Kurt Warner, Jeff Garcia, Peyton Manning, Brian Griese, Brett Favre, Kerry Collins, Donovan McNabb, Jay Fielder and Trent Green.

Not known as the flashiest of running backs, Curtis Martin of the New York Jets has been great every year he has been in the league. Although others may get more recognition, Martin is the NFL stat leader at the midway point. If Martin is 1A, San Diego Charger rookie LaDainian Tomlinson is 1B. The former TCU standout has begun his first year in the NFL on fire in both scoring and yardage. Behind the two are; Priest Holmes, Ahman Green, Corey Dillon, Shaun Alexander, Edgerrin James, Jerome Bettis, Marshall Faulk and Ricky Williams.

Wide Receiver is a critical position on a fantasy football team and this year's best player has been Denver Broncos wideout, Rod Smith. The rest of the top ten are: Terrell Owens, Marvin Harrison, Troy Brown, Qadry Ismail, Kevin Johnson, Jimmy Smith, James Thrash, Marty Booker and Tim Brown.

That is where things stand today. This does not mean that the above players are locks in November or December, so choose wisely.

Next week, turn to this column to see the winner of the October contest. Good luck.

Fox Lake to present 'A Family Christmas Holiday'

Children's coloring contest kicks off season

Christmas will be arriving in Fox Lake on Saturday, Nov. 24 with the 45th annual Christmas parade. The Parade Committee of Korpan's Landing and the Village of Fox Lake is busy with the final details of this successful community endeavor. This year's parade theme is "A Family Christmas Holiday."

As a tradition of the season, and with the cooperation of Second Federal Savings & Loan Association of Fox Lake, a children's coloring contest will be held with prizes awarded for three different age groups. Entry pictures to color will be distributed to local schools or may be picked up at Second Federal Savings & Loan Association of Fox Lake or the village hall. Santa will present prizes to the contest winners at Second Federal Savings & Loan on Saturday, Nov. 24 at 9 a.m. where the winning pictures will remain on display. The deadline for entry is Tuesday, Nov. 16.

Community groups and businesses are asked to consider an entry in the parade, whether it be a float, decorated car or specialty unit. Not only is this an opportunity for public exposure, but also an experience of civic unity for the Village of Fox Lake and the Chain-O-Lakes area. A special trophy for the best decorated entry using the family holiday theme will be awarded.

The parade will begin on Devlin Road, adjacent to Grant High School, at 10 a.m. The procession travels down Grant Avenue, continues on Forest to Oak Street and proceeds to Nippersink, turning onto Grand Avenue to Rolling Road past the Gazebo and into Lakeland Plaza to disburse.

Following the parade, there will be a children's Christmas party at the Fox Lake Community Center located at McKinley and Ernest Streets. The party, sponsored by Korpan's Landing/Village of Fox Lake, is for children age ten and under. Hot dogs, soda and Christmas stockings will be provided. The children will have an opportunity to talk to Santa and have a photo taken.

For additional information, call 587-0962.

Aries - March 21/April 20

You feel like you're in a dream this week, Aries. Things go well for you professionally and personally. You meet interesting people who can help you advance your career, and that special someone finally asks you out. However, enjoy it while you can, because family pressures will tie you up later in the week. Gemini plays a key role.

Taurus - April 21/May 21

You have to be strong early in the week, Taurus; loved ones are counting on you to be their support. A family problem has them up in arms. Your calm attitude helps others cope. You meet a friend of a friend and want to get to know him or her better. Don't rush things along. Let events take their course.

Gemini - May 22/June 21

You've finally got a relaxing week ahead of you, Gemini. Enjoy it. Spend time with those you haven't seen in a long while. Catch up on what's been happening. That special someone needs to see you. Don't get nervous; everything is OK. He or she just misses you. Cancer and Libra play key roles.

Cancer - June 22/July 22

No one would ever guess that you're a homebody this week. You're constantly on the go, be it for work or play. Enjoy all of the activity. A loved one has a problem and needs you to intervene. Even though you really want to help, stay out of it. He or she needs to take responsibility. However, be supportive.

Leo - July 23/August 23

Your arrogance is not appreciated by a business associate early in the week, Leo, so keep it in check. Just do what you're supposed to do, and keep quiet. It's the best way to avoid unneeded tension. A close friend takes you out on the town to celebrate. You'll meet an interesting person during the evening.

Virgo - Aug 24/Sept 22

Don't worry; be happy — this is your motto for the week, Virgo. While minor problems arise, they're nothing that you can't handle. Don't let these little things fluster you. A loved one needs your help to plan a family event. It will be fun, so don't say no. Scorpio plays an important role later in the week.

Libra - Sept 23/Oct 23

The early part of the week is stressful for you, Libra, because you take an associate's chiding seriously. He or she is just joking; don't get upset. The person you've been seeing wants to intensify the relationship. Don't jump into a serious romance if you don't think he or she is the one. Be true to yourself. Aries and Libra play important roles this week.

Scorpio - Oct 24/Nov 22

You feel totally out of control early in the week. Everything you do backfires on you. You can't seem to get anything finished. Remain calm; all will be well before the week's end. A close friend wants to help. Don't shut him or her out. A fresh opinion can get you back on track. Pisces plays a role on Thursday.

Sagittarius - Nov 23/Dec 21

Keep your temper in check during the middle of the week, Sagittarius. Things are not as bad as they seem. Blowing them out of proportion only will cause huge problems. A loved one gets hurt. Do your best to care for him or her in this time of need.

Capricorn - Dec 22/Jan 20

You're on the express train to success this week, Capricorn. You get noticed by important business associates, and your career gets a big boost. As for romance, you're in for a wonderful night on the town with that special someone. He or she finally gets up the courage to ask you out.

Aquarius - Jan 21/Feb 18

Be realistic this week. There's a lot to be done, and you can't do it all by yourself. Loved ones want to help you; let them. Don't let your pride get in the way. A close friend needs some financial help. Do what you can. Leo plays a key role late in the week.

Pisces - Feb 19/March 20

The spotlight is on you this week, Pisces. Don't freeze under the pressure; important people are watching you. A family spat turns into a huge fight. Don't get involved; you don't need the aggravation. A friend hosts a dinner party, and you have to go even though you're dreading it. Don't worry — it'll be fun, and you'll meet someone who can help advance your career.

Fifth annual America Recycles Day is Nov. 15

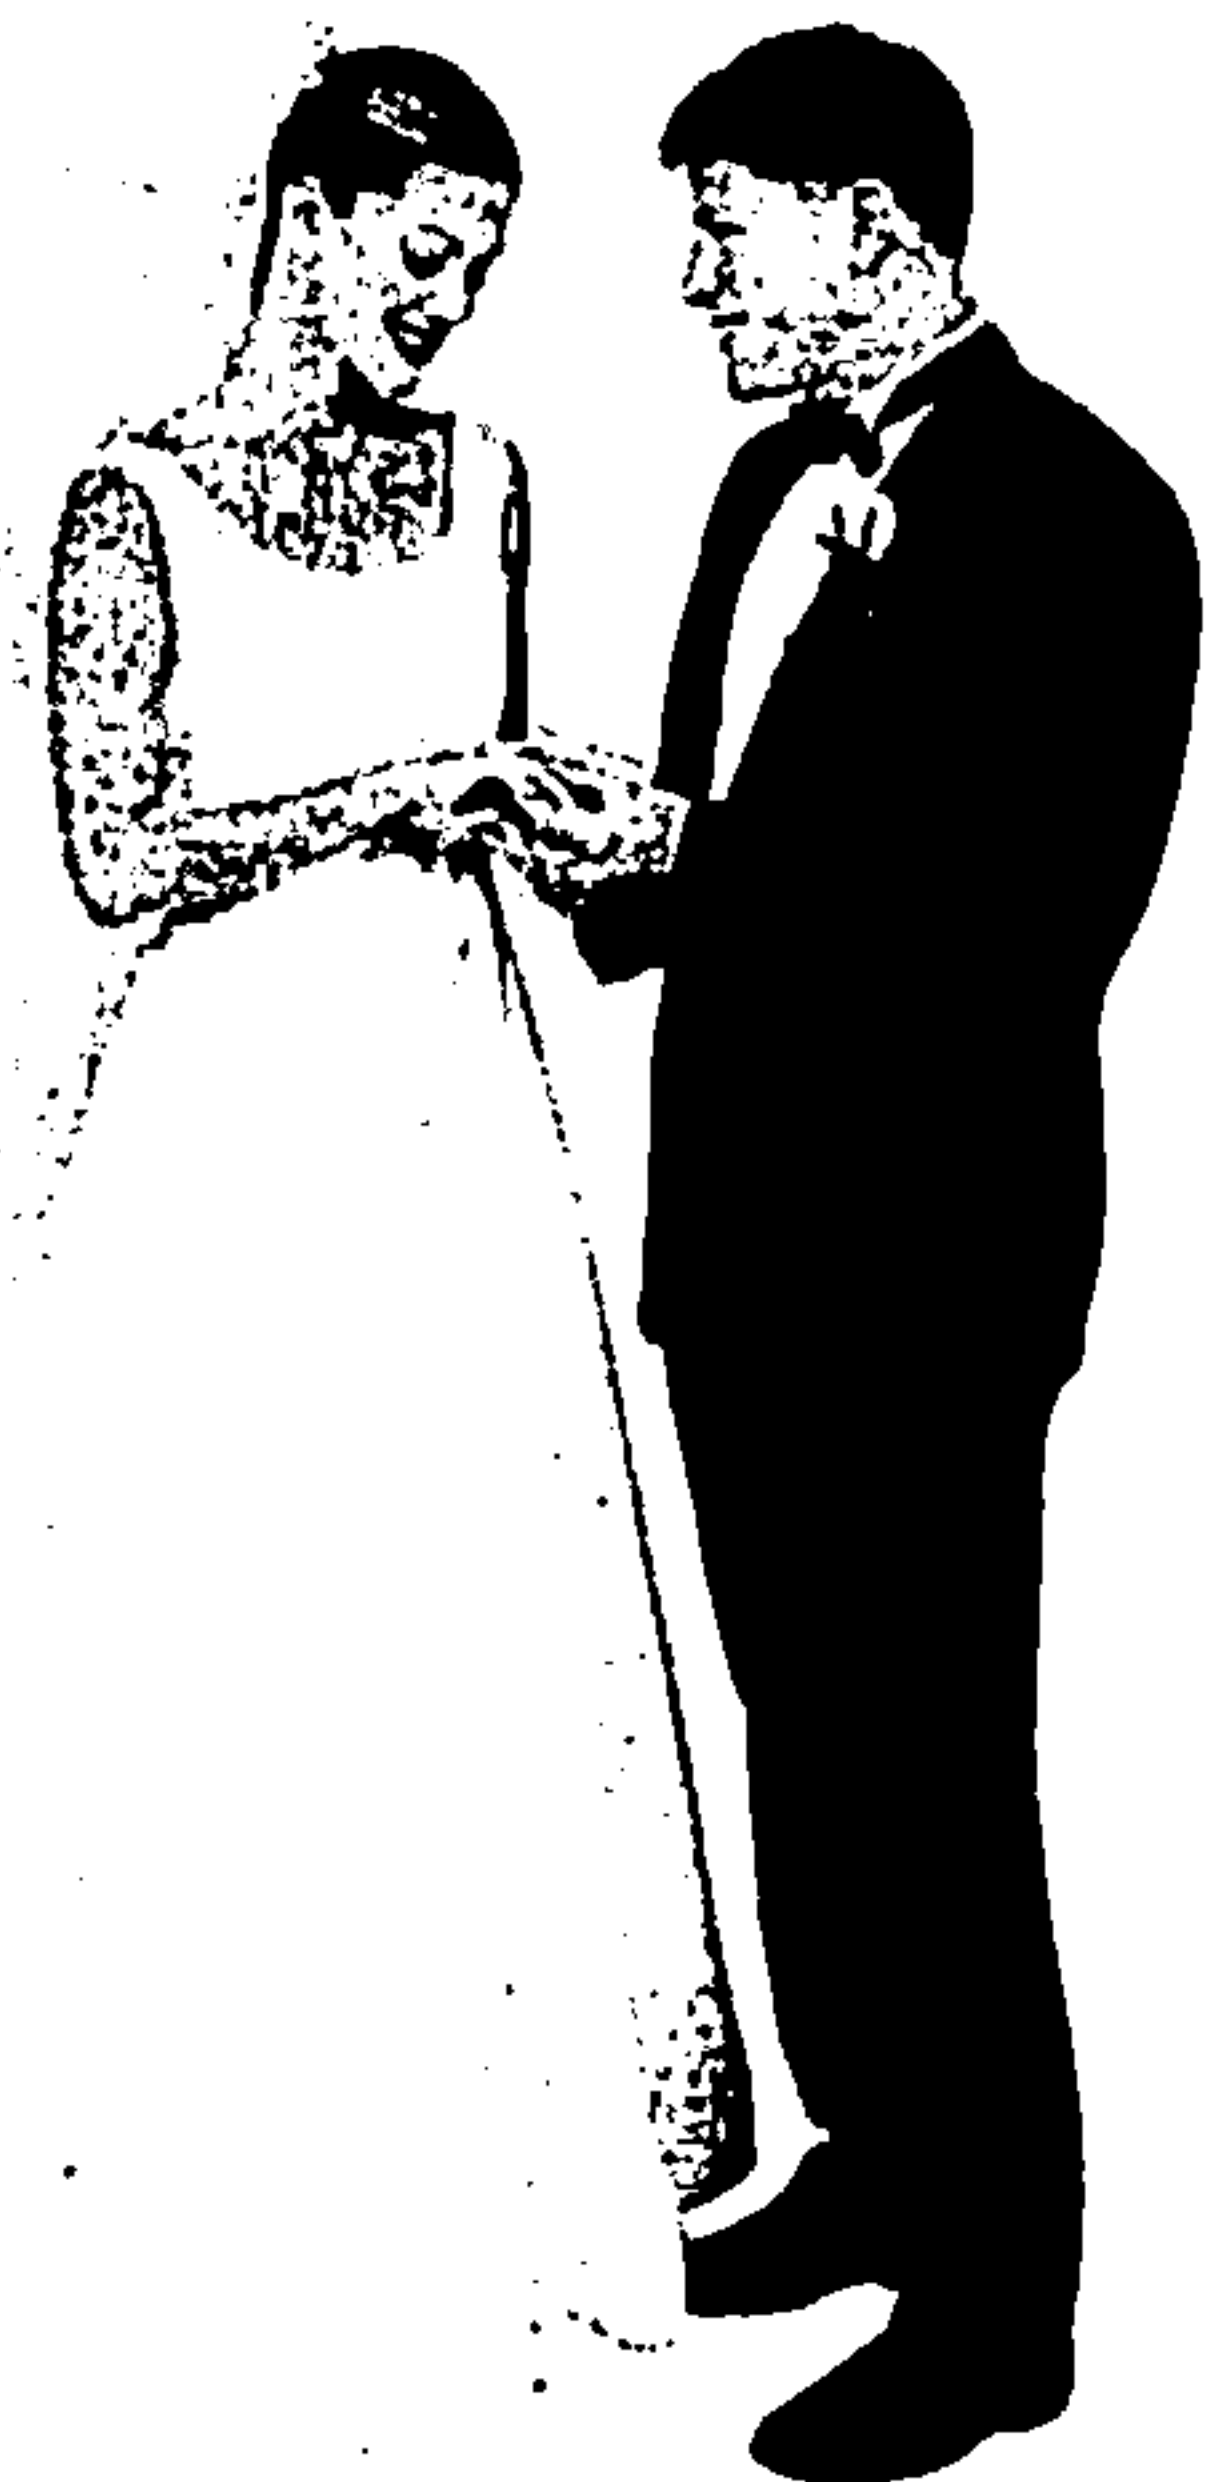

The Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs (DCCA) today urged Illinoisans to renew their commitment to recycling and to participate in local educational and promotional events leading up to "America Recycles Day," Thursday, Nov. 15.

America Recycles Day (ARD) is a national public awareness campaign to educate consumers about the economic and environmental benefits of recycling. DCCA's Bureau of Energy and Recycling coordinates ARD activities with the Illinois Recycling Association. The theme of this year's campaign is "Rededicate Yourself to Recycling."

DCCA is also urging all Illinoisans to take the pledge to recycle. ARD pledge cards are available at convenience stores throughout Illinois. By taking the pledge, customers become eligible for state and national prizes. Winning entries will be drawn at random on Dec. 15.

Events and other ARD information will be posted on the Illinois Recycling Association web site at www.ilrecyclingassn.org.

ARD coordinators and recycling officials who register their promotional events with the national ARD (www.americarecycles.org) and the Illinois Recycling Association web site are eligible to win cash, a laptop computer and other prizes.

Health department urges citizens, 50 and older, to obtain flu shots

In anticipation of the flu season (typically, January to April), the Lake County Health Department/Community Health Center is urging citizens, 50 years of age and older, to obtain flu shots. It also urges those at high risk for pneumonia, including persons at least 65 years of age or people with chronic illnesses, to receive the pneumonia vaccine. Together, influenza (flu) and pneumonia are the eighth leading cause of death in Lake County.

The Health Department is offering influenza and pneumonia vaccinations at 13 sites throughout the county during October, November and December (see attached schedule). It is important that senior citizens bring their Medicare part B cards, which will cover both pneumonia and flu vaccines. Those not on Medicare part B will be charged a $15.00 fee for the flu vaccine and a $20.00 fee for the pneumonia vaccine, based on ability to pay. The Health Department encourages seniors with HMO insurance to see their own physicians to obtain the vaccines.

Influenza is an upper respiratory infection that can make persons of any age extremely ill. Symptoms include sudden fever, chills, cough and soreness, and aching in the back, arms and legs. Although most people are ill for only a few days, some (particularly older adults and the chronically ill) can experience a much more serious illness. Senior citizens are recognized as a special risk group for flu and its complications, as the illness can be very debilitating.

Pneumonia is a potentially deadly complication of the flu. The pneumococcal vaccine can be given at any time of year, including at the time of an annual flu shot. This vaccine covers 23 strains of pneumonia and is 60 to 70 percent effective in preventing complications and hospitalizations. It is impossible to contract pneumonia from the vaccine. Some people may experience mild side effects such as soreness and redness at the injection site.

A single dose of pneumococcal vaccine is recommended for adults, age 65 and older. The Centers for Disease Control also recommends the vaccine for individuals over the age of 2 who have chronic heart disease, chronic pulmonary disease, diabetes, chronic liver disease, sickle cell anemia, or are immuno-compromised. At each Health Department Flu Clinic, nurses will interview and screen individuals requesting shots.

Under specific circumstances, the flu shot may be postponed or a referral made to a physician for consultation. Those circumstances include the following:

- The patient has a history of allergy to eggs and egg products.
- The patient has had Guillain Barre Syndrome.
- The patient has a fever or an active infection.

For more information, contact the Health Department at 360-3114.

Motorist usability key to 'safe crossing' initiative

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

What started out as a project to find a solution to the proposed 1994 Swift Rail Development Act that would mandate trains to blow their horns at 100 decibels as they pass through quaint and otherwise quiet towns, like Antioch, has turned into an issue about safety.

"The federal government has pronounced railroad crossings unsafe," said Alan Knutson, chair of the Antioch public safety committee that has a conceptual idea for safe crossings. "Making noise is a very low-tech safety device. It's about as high-tech as yelling."

Part of the committee's concern with just making more noise is that often drivers are talking on cell phones, engaged in conversation or listening to the radio, and noise isn't really so much a part of what drivers pay attention to for safety signals.

"A horn is a disconcerting audio intrusion," said Knutson. "If we use all of the traffic control technology, the motorists are in a familiar environment that they know what is expected of them."

Both residents and politicians have spoken out against the 1994 Swift Rail Development Act. It's been reported that nearly half of the communities that have banned horn blowing at some 2,058 railroad crossing nationwide are in Illinois.

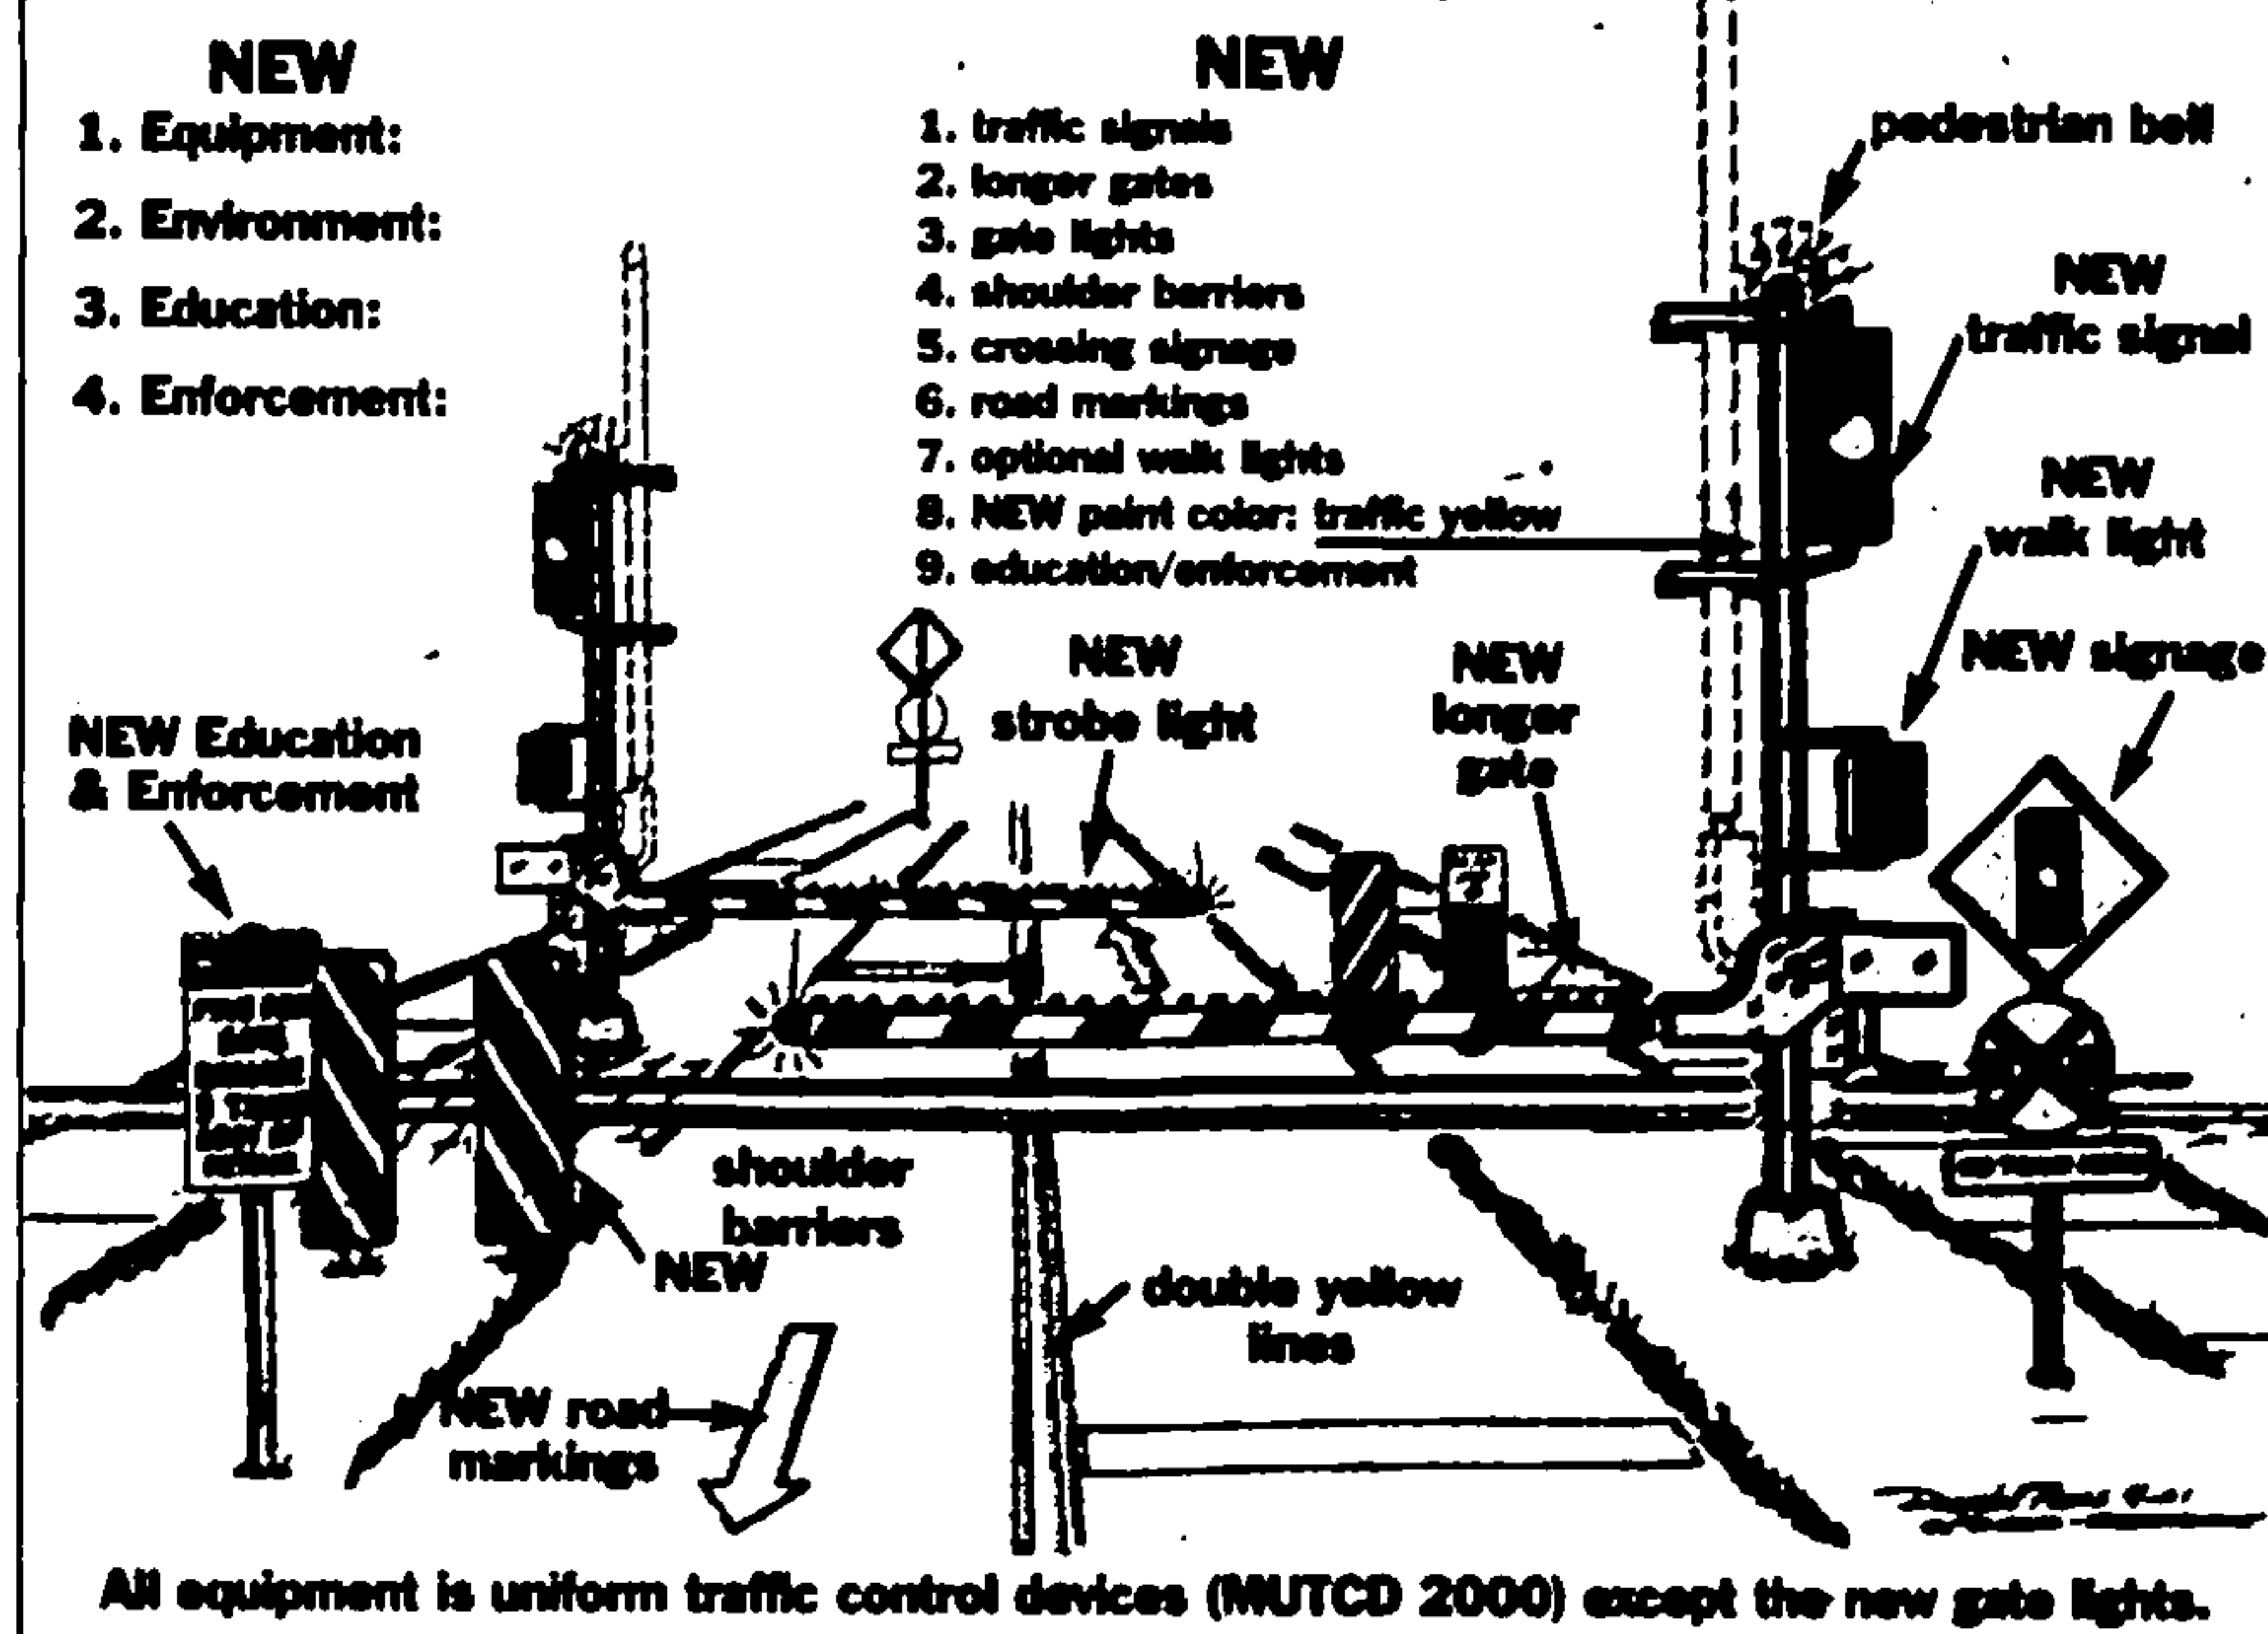

In addition to nuisance, a major concern is that property values in northeastern Illinois could be seriously reduced if the act is enforced. It's estimated that about 590,000 homes in this area are located within one-half mile of a railroad crossing.

"Everybody has been complaining about what the noise would be like, but no one was coming up with a solution," said Knutson. "The real issue is what should be done to make these crossings safer. Reducing the noise would just be an added benefit."

The Federal Railroad Administration (FRA) proposed rules in January 2000 that allow for the committee to work toward a different solution to horn blowing. "Interested parties may demonstrate proposed new supplementary safety systems, or procedures to determine if they are an effective substitute for the locomotive horn in the prevention of collisions and casualties at public highway-rail grade crossings."

How the 4-point 'Safe Crossing Concept' looks

NEW Safe Crossing Configuration

This representative conceptual illustration of a "safe crossing" has been modified slightly to use three standardized lights at the top of the drop-arm gate instead of a string of LED lights as shown. This proposal utilizes easily attained, motorist-familiar signs and signals to alert of coming trains, relabeled for readability. Illustration by Douglas Ploss for reference only (not to scale).

sions and casualties at public highway-rail grade crossings."

Knutson, and the committee he chairs, created the "safe crossing concept/initiative," as the concept is in the developmental stage and has not been engineered. The concept uses a four-point approach centered on equipment, environment, education and enforcement.

It utilizes the standard equipment found at all signaled road intersections with the addition of a gate that is 50 percent longer than what is currently being used at rail crossings. The use of already standardized equipment (called MUTCD, manual uniform traffic control devices) keeps estimated installation and repair costs manageable by eliminating specialized equipment that is more expensive and more difficult to maintain.

A study prepared for the Michigan Department of Transportation in 2000 found "in most cases (of railroad crossing accidents) there is some type of driver violation involved." It also noted that "at a red flasher location (without gates), drivers are supposed to stop, assess the risk associated with oncoming trains and then proceed (not a violation)."

The safe crossing concept/initiative would essentially treat railroad crossings as regular road intersections. It replaces the "ambiguous, old-fashioned and outdated equipment" currently used at crossings with a signal system that drivers are already familiar with using at every signaled intersection across the country.

The proposed traffic lights, with optional "walk lights" for areas with sidewalks, would simplify law enforcement. Knutson said the lights would turn red before the gates would go down, making it clear that anyone caught in the intersection had violated the law. The theory is that this, in turn, would reduce the liability of the railroad companies and the municipalities utilizing the system.

The concept is based on equipment and infrastructure already in daily use in every community across the country. The initial cost estimates are under $10,000 per crossing. This is relatively low when compared to some other proposed solutions, such as the automated train horns being implemented in Mundelein at cost greater than $30,000 per railroad crossing.

The committee is in the process of presenting the proposal to local, state and federal officials, including the FRA and the Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC), as well as to Metra officials. Additionally, the committee is in the process of applying for grant money, and hopes that Antioch will be a model community for this pilot program.

Antioch Mayor Taso Maravelas asked Knutson, an Antioch resident, if he would spearhead a committee to address this issue. "I could only give about 10 percent of time to this issue. He (Knutson) is a concerned citizen who has volunteered his time and his money to work on this project," said the mayor. "I want to thank him for his efforts."

"This is what I did before I retired," said Knutson. "Now I have an opportunity to do something for the community."

In addition to Knutson, the following are members of the Antioch public safety committee: Thomas Ploss, retired social security judge and railroad attorney; Debbie Rummel, driver's education department head at Antioch Community High School; David Deturo, president of Turo Electric; Michael Doran, president of Landmark Homes; Charles Watkins, chief of the Antioch Police Department and Jeff Vandervoort, assistant chief of the Antioch Fire Department.

Humble, wiser Salvi to seek Dist. 51 seat

2 unsuccessful state campaigns don't deter Republican from looking to get back into public office

Al Salvi, who served two terms in the Illinois General Assembly representing a west Lake County district and ran unsuccessfully in two statewide campaigns, has decided to return to the elective political arena.

Salvi said he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for the revamped 51st Legislative District running from a point in the center of Lake County southwesterly including all of Fremont Township (Mundelein) and Elia Township (Lake Zurich).

"I miss politics. I think I have a lot to offer residents of the district," declared Salvi, a resident of Lake Fairfield in unincorporated Fremont.

The native of Lake Zurich gave up a seat in the Illinois General Assembly to run for the U.S. Senate in 1996, defeating the favorite Bob Kustra in a hotly contested primary, but losing to incumbent U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin in the general election.

Two years later Salvi won the GOP nomination for Illinois Secretary of State only to be defeated by the Democratic nominee, Jesse White of Chicago, who had served a term as Cook County Recorder of Deeds. White is running for re-election in 2002.

Salvi said he is approaching the campaign for a return to the General Assembly with a sense of humility and a desire to resume public service. "I'm older, I think I'm wiser politically and I feel I have a lot to give the people of the district and the state."

Salvi

Since his defeat in 1998, Salvi has not been actively politically, choosing to concentrate on his law practice based in Waukegan and attending to his growing family. He is a highly regarded specialist in personal injury law.

"I'd consider it an honor to serve citizens of my hometown and where I now make my home," Salvi remarked.

Political analysts regarded Salvi as too conservative for state wide politics. His pro-life views were looked upon as liabilities, particularly in the suburbs. Some of the issues he raised in the Secretary of State's race related to needed reorganization came to be recognized as forecasts in light of scandals associated with the way Gov. George Ryan conducted the office when he was Secretary of State.

As a state representative, Salvi forged a reputation for hard work and constituent service.

Student to run for state legislature

Jason Linn, 21, will be a candidate in the March Democratic primary for the House seat in the new 61st House District of north Lake County. Linn, who is a political science major at Western Michigan University, is expected to graduate with honors this April. He will be challenging State Rep. Tim Osmond (R-Antioch) who will be seeking his third term.

Linn has been active in Democratic politics as a Lake Villa precinct committeeman and as a volunteer for Lance Pressi's campaign for Congress and Al Gore's campaign in 2000.

Linn stated, "I am running for Illinois' future." His campaign will focus on promoting renewable energy, computer literacy and campaign finance reform. The newly drawn 61st district covers Antioch, Benton, Grant, Lake Villa, Newport, Warren and Zion townships.

Abbott offers services to fight bioterrorism

Shipments of antibiotics sent to U.S. Department of Defense

Abbott Laboratories is helping the government address potential public health needs as a result of bioterrorism. Abbott is working with government agencies to determine potential needs for its expertise in a variety of areas, including antibiotics, diagnostics and hospital supplies. Abbott has the capacity and capability to offer research, manufacturing, delivery systems and logistical strength.

Abbott is executing a readiness plan that includes the following:

Conducting additional evaluation of its antibiotics against bioterrorism organisms to support in vitro (in the test tube) data that currently exists;

Providing supplies of its antibiotics, including Biaxin (clarithromycin) tablets, Biaxin (clarithromycin) for oral suspension and erythromycin, free of charge if requested and approved by the U.S. government, to support its efforts to treat victims of anthrax bioterrorism;

Offering the assistance of its scientists, who are leaders in anti-infective drug research and development, to federal and state government teams;

Providing its expertise in antibiotic manufacturing to government and other manufacturers, where difficulty in meeting needs has been identified;

Offering distribution assistance to other manufacturers of diagnostic tests that may not have the capabilities, as well as offering collaborative expertise to governmental agencies to develop tests for the rapid diagnosis of biological agents;

Sending shipments of its antibiotics to the Department of Defense for U.S. military troops involved in the current effort.

Preparing for increased production of its antibiotics in the event additional supplies are needed; and

Offering hospital supplies such as IV solutions and equipment and injectible medications for those in need.

"We have a responsibility as a member of the health care industry to do our part in assisting the government and our country in ensuring public health care needs are addressed quickly and appropriately," said Miles White, chairman and chief executive officer of Abbott Laboratories. "And, we hope that what we can offer will make a difference."

Abbott's marketed antibiotics have not been approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) for the treatment of anthrax infection. There are in vitro data to demonstrate that Abbott's antibiotic, Biaxin, is active against anthrax. Abbott is in contact with the government to determine the potential role for its products and the additional evaluation needed.

In addition, according to the Centers for Disease Control and prevention (CDC), among 13 of the most common antibiotics that have been tested against anthrax in vitro, 10 have been identified as active against currently-identified strains of anthrax, including Biaxin. While these in vitro data are available, the clinical significance of the findings has not been established.

Abbott is also conducting additional in vitro studies in rapidly evaluate the potential utility for Biaxin against anthrax, as well as other bacteria about which federal authorities are concerned. Abbott stands prepared to conduct any additional evaluations needed as determined in conjunction with the government.

Abbott responded to the events of Sept. 11, including donating $2 million from the Abbott Laboratories Fund; sending shipments of medicine and supplies to New York and Washington, DC; implementing 24-hour customer service coverage to ensure access to supplies; and providing transportation personnel to deliver critical medical products, nutritional and needed blood donations to hospitals in affected areas.

County looking for a few good voters

By HELEN MANSFIELD-CONCEPCION
Staff Reporter

It hardly seems possible that it was a year ago that Americans went to the polls to vote for president, only to have to wait several weeks until results were certified in Florida.

Lake County Clerk Williard Helander said that there are still people a year later "opinionated on both sides of the coin" over the results of the 2000 presidential election who will probably make sure they are registered this time.

Helander's office has launched a county-wide voter registration drive, naming November as voter registration month.

The theme of the registration is "Show your patriotism—register to vote."

The message, "What is more American than voting?", has resonated for the clerk's office, training hundreds of new registrars.

Helander said her office sent out letters to its 200 election judges to let them know about voter registration month, and a number of them have volunteered to be deputy registrars.

"We had our largest registrar class ever last week with over 100 members," she said.

Helander said a usual class size is in the seven-to-10-person range.

Following a press conference on the voter registration kick-off at the end of October, Helander said she was "delighted by the response," with over 100 members of the press attending.

"They wiped out our supply of press kits," she said.

As part of the voter campaign, a number of 1940s style war posters have been created with slogans such as "If you don't vote, you can't complain" and "Here's your soapbox. Now tell us what you stand for."

Helander said her office is looking to recruit a few local models to create a poster specifically for Lake County which would more accurately represent the ethnic diversity of the area.

A number of villages will host special voter registration events throughout the month.

On Nov. 19-20, the Wauconda Unit School District 118 will host a voters' drive at all of its five schools during parent/teacher conferences.

Warren-Newport Public Library will feature the "show your patriotism" theme with a voter registration event on Veterans Day on Monday, Nov. 12 between 10 a.m.-9 p.m.

Vernon Hills High School will offer registration for students during their lunch hours on Nov. 12 and 19.

The North Shore Chapter of Hadassah will register voters at the Highland Park Library on Nov. 19.

The Waukegan Mexican-American Organization will provide registration at local grocery stores and indoor soccer games in November.

The Waukegan T.O.W.N. organization will offer registration at its Nov. 25 meeting at which County Board Chairman Suzi Schmidt will speak. The North Chicago Branch NAACP will join the drive, along with IBEW Local 21 and the YWCA of Lake County.

Osmond seeks third term

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

State Rep. Timothy Osmond (R-Antioch) announced his intention to seek a third term in office in the 62nd District. "I'm making it official," he said.

Osmond, who is now halfway through his second term in office, said he has enjoyed his first three years as a representative of his district. He said, "I've just started to understand some of the challenges."

Osmond is currently serving on the Long Term Care Funding Task Force to seek solutions for the funding crisis in the state's long-term care industry.

Earlier this year, he proposed legislation that was signed into law prohibiting insurance companies from using credit scoring as the sole basis of issuing or renewing personal lines policies.

Looking toward the future, he said, "It will be a whole new learning experience with where the budget axe falls given the current economy."

Organizations that have previously endorsed Osmond include the following: Community Bankers Association, Employment Law Council Political Action Committee (ELCPAC), Illinois Education Association, Chicago Tribune, Township Officials of Illinois PAC (Political Action Committee), Illinois Agricultural Association, Associated Fire Fighters of Illinois and ABATE (A Brotherhood Aimed Toward Education) of Illinois.

Nuclear plant's security is high

Marc Jenkins of the Lakeland Media editorial staff encountered armed guards when he checked out security at the closed Zion nuclear generating plant Monday morning. There were reports that security was lax or nonexistent at the facility located on the shore of Lake Michigan.

Jenkins was met by Illinois National Guardsmen and an Illinois State Trooper. There were barricades on the roadway. Jenkins conferred briefly with an on-site administrator who described strict security policies. He left with the conviction that the two inactive reactors are well protected.

Incongruously, while our reporter was at the entry gate, just 100 yards away from school children arriving to tour the nuclear energy museum located in the plant. Such is life in America these days. We are on heightened alert for more acts of terrorism such as Sept. 11, yet life goes on.

While it is somewhat comforting to know that a potential terrorist target in our midst is under heavy security, the situation becomes discordant with the lifting Tuesday of a ban on general aviation flights over the Zion plant originating from Waukegan Regional Airport. Commercial and charter flights were not affected.

Does it make sense to provide guards on the ground and leave the skies unprotected?

Time lag affords learning period

Business started by voters last April will be completed this month with seating of newly elected members and reorganization of boards of education. Through a quirk in school law, board members elected last spring had to wait until November to take their seats.

In most cases, the time lag provided a six-month opportunity for school board newcomers to "bone up" on the public education process and their job ahead. Nowhere was the learning process more intense than the Round Lake Unit District, known far and wide as the most financially troubled school district in Illinois.

Campaigning together as the Clean Slate, four candidates won election with the promise to "shake things up." It didn't take long for cracks to develop in the hard line. Three newly elected board members—Ann Welk, Deanne Ruiz and Gordon Rogers—admit their perspective has changed after observing school business and conferring with outgoing board members on how to manage a school district $10 million in debt. Their running mate, Guy Finley, who was able to be seated immediately upon election because he ran to fill a vacancy, is fearful his colleagues have been compromised.

Undoubtedly, the new Round Lake board members, much like other board of education rookies, will find that casting votes that count will be much different than making comments from the sidelines. The campaign honeymoon ends when the votes count. We haven't changed the view that serving on a public school board of education is the toughest job in local government. We wish school board members well in making the tough decisions they will face.

VIEWPOINT

War tempering nation's thanks

If you're wondering what kind of Thanksgiving will be observed this year, you're not alone. Plan on some changes. America is a changed nation. The giddiness and the detachment of the 1990s is gone. A soberness is upon us, not somberness; more like a seriousness of resolve.

There'll be turkey, dressing and cranberries in abundance. Hard on the heels of the feast will be the typical over-stuffed menu of televised football games. What an appetite there is for sports.

This year, though, families gathered about the dining table will join in prayer with a purpose. There will be thanks for the plenty of a generous nation, but there also will be petitions voiced to God to protect our land from further harm. Thanks for the blessings of freedom will be tempered by the reality that the treasured openness and freedom of movement enjoyed by Americans is being constricted to preserve a way of life no other nation enjoys.

Gradually, the United States is learning the ways of a nation at war. Many among us remember how World War II changed America forever. A half century later, history is being repeated.

Americans learned from WWII that we can survive and thrive. That message should underscore prayers in whatever languages are spoken at Thanksgiving observances across the land Nov. 22.

lence by the Lincoln Academy of Illinois. Gov. and Mrs. George H. Ryan presented the Student Laureate Medallion to Michael F. Henrick of Lake Bluff, a student at Barat College. The award is given each year, along with a $150 honorarium, to one member from the senior class of each four-year, degree-granting institution of higher learning in Illinois.

Gloomy month

Meteorologist Allen Staver of Northern Illinois University, who puts out a monthly weather forecast, says November generally only has five sunny days and there are 10 days of measurable precipitation. "Say goodbye to sunshine," says Allen. Staver expects temperatures to drop 15 degrees to a daily high of 35 by the end of the month. It's likely that three days may not reach above the freezing mark, he reports.

Tollway bosses

Ever wonder who runs the Illinois Toll Highway Authority? Gov. George Ryan just made appointments to fill four-year terms. Julie A. Martines McKeivitt, 35, of Barrington Hills, is the owner of a rental business and active in Mexican-American affairs. Carl J. Kramp, 67, of Downers Grove, director of an Elmhurst bank, was reappointed. Arthur George Pradel, 64, is mayor of Naperville and a former Naperville policeman. Katherine D. Selcke, 49, of Hinsdale, is a long-time Ryan aide. Members are paid $27,778.24 annually.

No more pies

For 50 years Dick and Marge Breeden enjoyed one of life's enviable positions, working close to home at a job they loved. From a modest beginning, they turned an apple orchard into one of northern Illinois' major tourist attractions. "Appeling" at Wauconda Orchards will be remembered by thousands of families as a fall must that no longer can be experienced. The orchard has been closed for good. The Breedens soon will shutter the store for good, too. Their apples always were delicious, but the pies, especially blueberry, were heavenly. Hope Marge passes on those recipes—to someone we know.

Hall of Famer

Dr. Tom DeMeyer, veterinarian, is the newest member of the Lake County Farm Bureau Agricultural Hall of Fame. From his base in Grayslake, DeMeyer has been caring for large animals in north-eastern Illinois for three decades. He was honored for making agriculture in Lake County an economic force.

District 46 parent

Parent input valuable to shape curriculum

COMMENTARY

Last week's commentary by Michael Landers, "Curriculum vote misguided effort," discussed Friends of District 46 and its proposed advisory referendum on Core Knowledge. I think the author misunderstands the intent of the Friends group and the point of the proposed referendum.

Last March, a letter from then Board of Education President John Karol and Superintendent Dr. Kurtis Anderson stated: "The constituents of District 46 are the ones who will create the future for our schools." At the time, Dr. William Spady was guiding that future. It soon became evident that the community and Spady did not share the same vision. But the offer for the community to shape the future of our schools continues to have merit. Friends of District 46, of which I am a member, formed as a result of that offer.

I am thankful to live where anyone can openly bring forth an idea. That is the essence of a democracy and one of this county's founding principles. As such, I disagree with Landers that bringing this to an advisory referendum is "undemocratic and just plain dumb." What could be more democratic than to put an issue to vote?

If the community doesn't support it, the referendum reveals that. The Friends group has repeatedly stated that it has no desire to force Core Knowledge on the community. This decision cannot be made by a "small group" as Landers suggests. Only our elected board has the authority to set direction. As our representatives, they should welcome the input gained from a referendum obtained at no expense to the district.

Landers also believes education decisions should be left to education professionals. Clearly, we must rely on professionals to provide guidance. Note that over 200 education professionals developed Core Knowledge. However, it would be a mistake for parents to abdicate the responsibility for their children's education solely to professionals.

There are many philosophies on education. It is a parent's right and responsibility to provide input about which philosophy they believe is appropriate. Landers implies that parents are not qualified to make education decisions and likens it to a lawyer telling a surgeon how to do open heart surgery. We don't blindly allow our doctor to make critical decisions about our health. We get second opinions and must ultimately make our own choices. Similarly, the education of our children is far too important to leave to others. The responsibility rightly rests with us as parents. Involved parents equate to better schools.

Landers points out that he is no fan of Spady and was glad when the public rose up to squelch his involvement. Yet he now asks parents to butt out and leave curriculum decisions in the hands of the same administrators who brought us Spady and the similarly minded Edward T. Clark. The question is, do these controversial philosophies represent the views of the majority of parents in District 46?

Lastly, Landers suggests that we put Core Knowledge to a teacher vote. It is true that teacher support of Core Knowledge is important. But is it realistic to expect an objective vote from

PARTY LINES

PARTY LINES, THE LAKELAND NEWSPAPERS' COLUMN OF POLITICAL OPINION, IS PREPARED FROM STAFF REPORTS.

Democrat Bean's theme knocking Crane familiar

Barrington Democrat Melissa Bean, 39, announced challenger of GOP Congressman Phil Crane, already is singing the familiar song that Crane is "out of tune."

Bean, a business consultant, says the venerable Republican is "not well aligned with the mainstream." Haven't we heard that about Crane before? Bean learned the political ropes as a volunteer for Democrat Lance Press two years ago, the latest in a long line of Democratic victims in the 8th District.

Moore: Breakfast clubbers have another year to meet.

Trying again

Former Illinois Supreme Court Justice Lou Rathje of Wheaton, Du Page County, is calling on friends in Lake County to circulate petitions for a 2002 try for an Appellate Court seat he once held before appointed to fill a high court vacancy. Rathje was defeated two years ago for a Republican nomination for the Supreme Court from northern Illinois. The Appellate Court sits in Elgin.

Well funded

With approximately four months to primary election day, the "John Cox for Senate" campaign is in good financial condition. At the same time he loaned $1 million of personal funds to the campaign, North Shore resident Cox reported Dennis Healy, chairman of Turtle Wax Corp., has signed on as head of fund raising. Healy is conducting a broad-based drive aimed at garnering 250,000 contributors at an average of $50 each. The Cox campaign is being managed by Charlie Stone of Evanston, a well respected GOP strategist.

Beaubien challenger

Political consultant Jim Thacker, guiding the fortunes of Attorney Pete Michling in the new 52nd legislative district, promises a stiff primary challenge of incumbent State Rep. Mark Beaubien (R-Barrington). Michling is a savvy Republican who backed Dr. Tom Salvi two years ago. Thacker, who operates out of Woodstock, said GOP registration is evenly divided between McHenry and Lake counties. A small 52nd portion of Cook County could be a wild card.

Helander fan

County Clerk Willard Helander doesn't have a bigger fan than Antonetta "Ant" Simonian, executive director of the Lake County Republican Federation.

Simonian sent out a press release crediting Helander with adding "nearly 100,000 voters" through registration efforts. Simonian lauded Helander for instituting a procedure that ties voter ballot coding to the property index number where the voter resides (true). The system makes for the most accurate voter file Lake County ever has had. According to Simonian, the county could see an 85-90 percent turnout next election as the result of Helander initiatives. Lake County voter turnout in the 2000 presidential year exceeded the national average of 50 percent by 20 points.

Lines drawn

Lorraine Ray is taking her ouster from a Fremont Township citizens advisory committee in stride, saying Supervisor Pete Tekampe's decision not to reappoint her only draws lines sharper between open space supporters and backers of development. Ray's removal also is serving as a rally point for residents of rural Mundelein pushing for formation of a tax supported Open Space district in the March 19 primary.

Chicago style

She didn't show it, but State Rep. Susan Garrett (D-Lake Forest) was rankled when Chris Cohen showed up at a press conference announcing her candidacy for a new southeast Lake County state senate district. Cohen, a former Chicago alderman, handed out campaign literature at the Garrett event held in Bannockburn. Chicago style politics, no doubt. The new district also includes a big chunk of Cook County territory.

Club to continue

State Rep. Andrea Moore (R-Libertyville), bowing out after five terms, said she intends to keep her Breakfast Club operational through the end of her term Dec. 31, 2002. The club has served as a fund raising arm and a platform for airing issues. Moore meets with club members quarterly. Members pay $150 to belong.

Staying put

State Rep. Sid Mathias (R-Buffalo Grove) has decided to remain in a random county-line district despite speculation that he might run in a new south Lake County district. Currently representing the 51st district, which includes population in Cook County, Mathias is expected to keep his district office in Arlington Heights.

The best things Shakespeare never said

My wife Janice and I have a little game we play, one that has evolved over time along with our interest in words. When one of us comes up with a one-liner or an expression we think is particularly clever, the other douses the distinction with, "That may not be original; Shakespeare probably said it first."

That darned Shakespeare, he ran out of ink for his busy quill 400 years ago but he's still out-writing the rest of us.

My "Complete Works of Shakespeare" is the most mammoth book in my collection, bigger than a breadbox and with 800 pages containing his 37 plays and 160 poems.

That's a lot of literature legacy for a guy who bought the farm at 52, and many of his lines are still quoted as if written yesterday, although folks may not realize they came from him. Take the following for example:

"The worm will turn."

"Every dog will have his day."

"A rose by any other name would smell as sweet."

"Beauty is in the eye of the beholder."

"Be not afraid of greatness: Some are born great, some achieve greatness and some have greatness thrust upon them."

Well, I've been busy, too, not necessarily writing immortal quips but collecting them.

This being the land of the one-liner and the home of the put-down, I believe in arming oneself with a repertoire that will rescue one in times of conversational necessity.

For example, when some of us not blessed with a silver tongue are called upon to speak in public, we may panic if not prepared. As we fumble for the right thing to say, how comforting to have at hand a laugh line like this:

"Ever since I had my nose fixed, my mouth doesn't work."

Here are other lines from my collection of the best things Shakespeare never said:

"I used to play water polo, but my horse drowned." (I don't know where it came from, but I love that line.)

"A liberal is a conservative who hasn't been mugged." (That one, too.)

"When an old person dies, a library is lost."

"You are the same today that you'll be five years from now, except for two things: the people you meet and the books you read."

"Wealthy people miss one of life's greatest thrills—making the last car payment."

"First-rate people surround themselves with first-rate people, second-rate people with second-rate people."

Here's a handy line for those of us who are aging and being accused of becoming forgetful: "I have an excellent memory, it's just real short."

I see there is more space to fill, so here are a few other things Shakespeare never said, but probably wishes he had:

"A consultant is an ordinary guy more than 50 miles from home."

"Don't carry a grudge. While you're carrying the grudge, the other guy is out dancing."

"Real generosity is doing something nice for someone who will never find it out."

"Choose a job you love and you will never have to work a day in your life." (Confucius)

I could rattle on about this subject, but as Mason said to Dixon, "We have to draw the line somewhere."

our teachers when their employer is clearly opposed to the idea? Also, it would be premature to ask for their final opinion now before they have had adequate time to fully consider the program. It is noteworthy that the American Federation of Teachers has put Core Knowledge on its short list of most promising programs. Landers asks how our teachers would feel about working in a district where parents are involved in decisions about curriculum. I believe great teachers prefer involvement to indifference.

It's too bad that Landers did not take the time to look into Core Knowledge. If he didn't like Spady, he might really like Core Knowledge.

Hunting allowed

Once again the Illinois Department of Natural Resources is allowing bow and arrow hunting at Volo Bog. Once again brave hunters are allowed to stalk, terrorize and kill animals with bows and arrows—often resulting in prolonged and painful deaths. What is the moral justification for this? Is there any morality to it at all? Are the hunters starving and in need of food in order to survive? Do they need live animals for target practice in order to improve their aim? Are the fright, terror, and pain experienced by the hunted animals in any way justified by the "kicks" and "fun" experienced by the noble hunters? Is this really a "sport"?

Unforgettable date

My daughter's birthday was the 11th of September. Needless to say there was very little celebration, although unfortunately that date will be in the history books. As I look back it strikes me as how much was changed in our lives and our country from that day. It must have been the same in the days and weeks following Pearl Harbor. The world changed that day, too.

On Sept. 10, the word "war" was a thing of the past. Now it is spoken and talked about every day. The people of the United States of America thought we would never be attacked at our homes, now we know different. Most of us thought of hanging our flag on holidays, today it is everywhere our symbol of faith in our country. We never thought about freedom, now once again we are ready to fight for it. We went to work with no fear, now we look back at New York and realize that 5,000 innocent people went to work that day with no fear. Our president's popularity was not the greatest, now he is the hero who must lead us against the enemies of our country.

It is strange how one day can change the world, but it must have been like this on Dec. 7, 1941, also. We fought and won then, and we will do it again. I guess history really does repeat itself.

CNN to rescue

Paul Revere, as the story goes, would ride through New England towns alerting the populace by shouting the alarm, "The British are coming." Having done this, he probably saved numerous lives during the Revolutionary War and may, in no small way, have shortened the war dramatically.

It seems the Taliban can do without its own Paul Revere: They have CNN and the rest of the media to alert them of any impending attacks, enemy strengths, and/or logistics. I don't believe the blame falls squarely on the shoulders of the media; the administration must share, at the very least, part of the blame. If "photo-ops," speeches, and press conferences were lethal weapons, we would have put an end to the conflict by now.

Try greenbacks

There is a much better way to help the Afghan refugees in a Pakistan. We need to do what we do here in the states. It is called Welfare. Rather than send food with which they are unfamiliar, that they fear might be poisoned, that costs as much to transport as to buy, that may be stolen or rot along the way, that the Pakistani merchants see is killing their markets, we should send them dollars, greenback, cash.

Line them up, give them an identity card and regular cash payment. They can then buy whatever they themselves want, not what someone else decides they want. The merchants will be happy because they will be doing business and the food and medicine will flow to the cash. The food will be trusted because it will be furnished by fellow Muslims—overall it will be a lot more economical.

Attracting commerce

The city of Waukegan's attempts to attract new businesses and industries provide an excellent example of the struggles that many Lake County municipalities face today in trying to jump start their local economy. Every community is looking to draw quality commercial and industrial development, and in turn, new jobs, tax revenue and increased property values. But wanting to attract these developments, and successfully doing it are two very different ventures in today's business climate. To help municipalities successfully land quality businesses, they need to follow these five steps.

Inventory assets that can be offered to new businesses, like highly skilled workforce or access to transportation.

Clearly define a municipality's needs and aspirations. More jobs is an obvious choice, however upon closer examination, many communities will find that they have needs they may have initially overlooked.

Consider "public-private" partnerships so that the community has access to expertise and resources available in the private sector.

Develop a comprehensive growth and development plan that accentuates the area's strengths, fortifies its weaknesses, and targets specific business sectors and companies.

Finally, market the community to select companies to help ensure that the municipality has the opportunity to differentiate itself from competing communities.

Improving schools

In his discussion of the determination of curricula in public schools, guest writer Michael Landers (Commentary, Oct. 26) rightly excoriates the idea of transforming these curricula into political footballs by subjecting them to popular referenda.

But the curriculum dispute is merely a specific case within a much larger issue: that of the proper role of government in education. Instead of rearranging the deck chairs on the floundering Titanic of government-controlled schools, Americans should assert a strict separation of education and state.

A free market in education, untrammelled by political interference, would provide freedom of choice, a greater number of alternatives, less bureaucracy, better control by education consumers (namely, parents), drastically lower taxes, and increased incentives for the best educators.

Coddling too much can damage futures

Hi Dr. Singer,

I am calling you out of sheer frustration! We are in a school district that uses a certain behavior program philosophy for handling all of its behavior problems in kids. Now, mind you, we are in a public school. I think that the use of this program seems to have contributed to huge amounts of kids who are completely out of control behaviorally. The program advocates for letting kids misbehave a number of times before actually doing anything about it. So, bad behavior is ignored a lot of the time. When it is finally responded to, the response takes the form of attention from faculty members or talking. There is nothing else done. The joke is that the kids seem to know the exact point that they can misbehave up to and it adds up to a lot of misbehavior. Kids are even having to be physically restrained in this public school and to me that is just a huge sign that something is terribly wrong. My child is one of the kids acting out. Each time I try to actually use some form of real discipline or limit setting, I hear from school personnel about how he just needs more understanding and more attention. When he acts out at school, he gets a personal audience with 2 social workers for a full hour and gets out of any prior responsibilities during that time. To me it's clear why he continues to do the bad behavior, but when I say this, I am looked at like I am from another planet. I feel like these people are making me feel like using true limit setting and discipline for my son is counter-culture and I am sick of it. Is it just my district or do you see this in other places? I figured that since you deal with strengthening out bad behavior in kids, that you might be able to tell me if I am on the right track of thought or not. By the way, my form of discipline for my child is not violent or inappropriate. I am a loving, caring parent who wants her child to learn limits now, before it's too late. With all these kids shooting up schools, I want to get a good start on making sure that my child knows that it's not o.k. to act out! What do think about this? Can you help us? Just call me...Counter Culture Mom and proud to be that!

PARENT'S PLACE

Dear Counter Culture,

Boy, you do sound frustrated and I can completely understand why! You are also to be commended for caring so much about making sure your child's future is a good one! In answer to your question, I am seeing more and more of exactly what you describe, in many places. I am also very alarmed by this because I believe that if more parents don't wake up to this trend, we are going to inadvertently cripple a whole generation of kids. These over-ingratiated kids will have no understanding of what it takes to live peacefully in an adult society. I believe the "no-punishment/attention to feelings only approach" has created the kids who could actually think of killing because their needs were not met or because they were left out. Many people believe that there was something new or terribly wrong with all the kids who have perpetrated violence recently, but I do not believe that kids have changed that much. I believe the only true change that has happened is society's refusal to punish and refusal to hold kids accountable for the little things before they start doing the bigger ones. The point is, any child is capable of doing horrible things if behavior is allowed to be out of control long enough. It grows exponentially over time and if there are no negative associations with that kind of behavior and if it gets the child what he or she wants each time, which it usually does, that child believes that the sun rises and sets for him. Why shouldn't he think that when his every whim is satisfied? When bad behavior does not receive a negative response.

I hope this column is a wake-up call for all parents. Listen to the frustration in this mom's call. She is right on track. Kids need to learn how to forego their own needs for someone else's. They need to learn that they will not always be first or right or paid attention to. They need to learn that spoiled-brat antics will get nothing else but an immediate negative response the first time. They need to learn to ask for help (by the way... I will say that talking about problems is o.k. as long as there has been some form of holding the child responsible for the behavior 1st. Otherwise, nothing is learned.) They need to be intensely taught right from wrong. These lessons don't get learned through non-action or through talking or through attention. These lessons get learned through the child doing things in life and feeling the responses. Are the responses positive or negative? This will dictate what happens next time. I find it terribly sad that many kids do not feel any negative response for bad behavior until they are well into their teens, even though bad behavior had been occurring since they were 3.

Regarding the program you mentioned, I don't know which one you are referring to, but I will say that the adult world does not allow many chances for misbehavior. A program that teaches kids that they have many chances to misbehave will create the wrong training for those kids for adult life. They will expect people to let them do what they want just like happened throughout. They will not know how to handle it when adult life isn't there to coddle. We all know that adult life is not always easy. Adult life allows one chance. One bad decision, can mess up the rest of anyone's life in adulthood. For example, if you drive drunk and a police officer pulls you over, he will more than likely not sit down and talk to you about your problems and how much self-esteem you have. He will not give you an hour of undivided attention. He will slap you with a ticket, take your license, take your car, take you in to jail and make you have to see a judge to get it all back. You will pay the 1st time. You hopefully learn from that horribly negative response to not do it again because it cost you something. Compare that with the kid who gets in trouble and instead of being punished in some appropriate way he is given total attention by 2 social workers. This speaks for itself. Now, the Social Workers probably saw their actions as a good thing. They were being nurturing and helpful to an "at risk child." The problem here is that nurturing a child for having committed a bad behavior is asking for that behavior to happen again and often! To illustrate this, I would like to tell you about a kid I saw a long time ago. This story will illustrate this point perfectly. He was 9 and was getting in trouble constantly in school right before recess time. They tried it all. Every behavior program, but to no avail. I sat down with this kid and decided to not focus on asking him about the bad behavior like everyone else had. Rather, I asked him to tell me about recess. I asked him what he liked to do at recess. It turned out that this kid was being bullied on the playground and hadn't told anyone. The interesting thing was that he could actually verbalize to me that if he misbehaved enough in school, he would get to eat his lunch in the Principal's office and talk to the Principal throughout lunch and recess. So, to summarize, this child knew that his ticket away from recess was to act out. The punishment felt safer than recess for him. We arranged for him to spend recess in the library researching topics he liked and the problem was solved. It took exactly 20 minutes to solve this after months of problems.

My point is, we can do things to inadvertently continue bad behavior by paying the wrong kind of attention to it, and by allowing it to go on without any real investigation or negatives occurring.

Everyday I see families who have been held hostage by bad behavior. Bad behavior is a snap to change if you know how to approach it right. I hope that what I contribute to these families and society is to help these people help their kids learn the kinds of things now that will help them lead productive and normal lives. It's better to teach them when they are kids, in the safety of your home. Contrary to what many of you might think, I believe that there is no such thing as a "stage" that kids pass out of. They either learn to change what they do or they don't learn to change it and it continues in worse forms. The thing that teaches is the response. Successful adults are people who learned to handle themselves and their urges correctly in childhood based on responses from those that cared about them. Every kid has that capacity if parents take the lead. This means active, alert parenting. Not ignoring and not waiting. If you are not happy with the way the school is handling things, I would suggest that you might check into private school or home schooling. Definitely you should handle the behavior problem privately. I would be glad to work with you if you choose. Just remember, the earlier you start the easier it is to get things on track and it doesn't have to take a long time. Good luck to you!

What would you do if your doctor said nothing more could be done for you?

Vickie Girard called CTCA.

| Diagnosed as terminal, Vickie came to CTCA for hope. That was 11 years ago.

Vickie heard the worst from doctors she consulted after being diagnosed with stage four breast cancer that had metastasized to her bones.

Four different doctors at four different hospitals said she would have six months to live. That was when her husband saw an ad on television and urged her to make just one more phone call. She called Cancer Treatment Centers of America.

It was a phone call that changed her life.

From CTCA, she got the nutritional, emotional and spiritual support she needed, but there was much more. She also got the best medical treatment cancer-fighting technology had to offer. This included fractionalized chemotherapy that helped make her a candidate for a bone marrow transplant that saved her life.*

Vickie was not alone. There are others. In fact, many patients who come to CTCA have already heard the worst from another hospital when they still have a treatable disease.

Today, Vickie Girard is an inspirational author and speaker. Traveling across the country, she speaks to hundreds of people at a time, spreading her message of 'where there is life, there is hope.' Her book "There's No Place Like Hope," available in bookstores nationwide, is a first-person resource for those battling cancer.

If you or a loved one are currently fighting cancer, call oncology information specialist Doug White at 1-800-577-1255 to find out how CTCA can help you in your battle.

Can your child see to learn? 20 percent can't see

Each year, one in five children enter kindergarten with a vision problem that could affect their ability to learn. More than 80 percent of learning is a result of visual processing, so if children aren't seeing well, they are going to have trouble learning.

In an effort to detect vision problems in children before they enter school, optometrists in the Eye Care Council have developed the 'See To Learn' Program.

Through the 'See To Learn' Program, more than 450 optometrists from 18 states are working in their communities to educate parents, educators, child care providers and others about the warning signs of vision problems. They also offer free vision assessments for three-year-olds.

"We hope that by providing free vision assessments to three-year-olds, we can detect problems that might affect their ability to do well in school and later in life," said Charlotte Nielsen, O.D. of Grayslake.

While many parents assume that their children will let them know if they are experiencing vision problems, most young children are not aware that they have vision problems.

"One of the biggest difficulties we run into is that children with vision problems are often unaware that they have vision problems, because they assume everyone else sees the same way they do," Dr. Nielsen said. "And certain conditions, such as lazy eye, require early detection and treatment to ensure that there is no permanent loss of vision. That is why all parents, teachers and anyone else who works with children need to learn the warning signs of vision problems."

Eye Care Council optometrists also encourage parents to schedule their children for a comprehensive vision examination from an optometrist or ophthalmologist before or during their children's first year of school.

For more information about scheduling your three-year-old for a free vision assessment through the 'See To Learn' Program, call the Council at 1-800-960-EYES or visit the Council on the web at www.seetolearn.com.

Make smart moves after the big move

The truck has been unloaded and your boxes are inside. Where do you begin? Before you start unpacking, there are some important items of business to handle.

•Start at your door. Change the locks on your new home. "You don't know who has a set of the previous owner's keys," said Fran Broude, senior regional vice president, Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage. "Changing your locks gives you peace of mind that only your family has access."

•Protect your investment. Install new batteries in the smoke alarms and if you're waiting for new curtains to arrive, hang temporary coverings to hide your valuables while unpacking. If you have a home security system, get it up and running.

•Identify emergency information. Ask your realtor where the nearest hospital, police station and fire department are located. Post the new emergency numbers near the phone or have them programmed into speed dial.

•Know the best places to get stuff. Frequent trips to grocery, hardware and drug stores are usually needed for must-have items like aspirin and extension cords. Your Realtor can save you time by pointing out the nearest places to shop.

•Get hooked up. Your Realtor can provide you with the name of the local electric, phone, gas and cable companies, as well as newspaper and waste disposal. Don't forget to make a trip to the department of motor vehicles to change your driver's license.

Salutos restaurant assists Cancer Society

Salutos Restaurant, at 7680 Grand Ave. in Gurnee, and WXLG-FM (102.3) will join the Lake County Health Department/Community Health Center in promoting tobacco prevention during the Great American Smokeout on Thursday, Nov. 15.

Salutos, which normally allows smoking, will offer smoke-free dining for the entire day. From 11:30 a.m.-1 p.m., health department staff will raffle off prizes at the restaurant. From 5-7 p.m., WXLG-FM will do a live remote broadcast from Salutos. County board members and health department officials will be on hand to discuss tobacco prevention and present Salutos owners with a certificate in recognition of their participation.

The American Cancer Society created the annual Great American Smokeout to encourage smokers to kick the habit for at least 24 hours, and to increase public awareness of the importance of reducing tobacco use.

According to a recent study, approximately 74,000 residents or 18.2 percent of the population in Lake County smoke.

Health department staff will man a booth from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. in the main lobby of the College of Lake County's Grayslake campus, 19351 W. Washington St. in Grayslake, on Nov. 15. They will play tobacco prevention videos and raffle off prizes to students who smoke but are willing to quit for the day. Raffle prizes include a "Commit to Quit" basket with a water bottle, relaxation tape, a T-shirt and stress ball.

Additionally, staff has encouraged businesses along Grand Avenue from Waukegan to Gurnee to feature Great American Smokeout messages on their marquees on Nov. 15.

Lake County Sheriff's dispatcher named Telecommunicator of the Year

By VICTORIA SCHROEDER
Staff Reporter

Antioch resident Leo Kalisz won Telecommunicator of the Year for his outstanding works at the Lake County 911 center.

The award was presented by the Illinois APCO, an association of public safety communication officials who recognize individuals for their personal and professional conduct, emotional stability, integrity and dependability.

"I was stunned when they first told me that I was the winner. I just do my job the best I can," said Kalisz.

The Sheriff's Director of Emergency Communications George Filenko, a past recipient who nominated Kalisz said, "It was a great compliment from the public safety communications field in Illinois. This is the top award that you can receive from all your co-workers."

"Leo has the old fashioned work ethic. You can count on him day in, day out. He takes a silent, steady leadership role which makes him the role model for the new generation of telecommunicators," said Filenko.

Since Filenko's four years of working with the Lake County Emergency Communications Department, Kalisz has been the only one nominated who actually won the award.

Lake County Sheriff Gary Del Re described Kalisz as professional, loyal, and most of all, helpful to both other employees and residents calling for assistance. "Leo exemplifies everything a public safety communicator ought to be," said Del Re.

Kalisz has been a Lake County telecommunicator for over 20 years. His wife Claudia, son Brian, and daughter Gina have supported him in his career and sacrificed their time with him during the 18 years he worked on the midnight shifts. He now works the day shifts at the Libertyville facility.

"I tried to make it to as many events of my kids as I could. If not, they understood and were really supportive," said Kalisz.

His first supervisor, Clarice Shanks, taught him the rights and wrongs of the job and he said he gives a lot of credit to her.

One 911 call that was the most difficult for Kalisz was when two Lake County officers, which he knew personally were on a traffic stop and were struck by a car in the Fall of 1995. A Flight for Life brought the officers to the hospital, who both recovered. "I recouped, but it really hit me hard. For three days I was really torn apart," he said. "Think about it and cry about it later, but make sure to keep a little sanity in the room for now," he added.

Kalisz will join other Ill. regional Telecommunicator of the year recipients at a National conference next April.

Federal funds to expand Metra rails in Lake County

By VICTORIA SCHROEDER
Staff Reporter

A second Metra train station will be added to Grayslake by 2005, funded by a $22.8 million federal grant for expansion and improvements to the Northeast Illinois commuter rail service.

"Grayslake is always looking for ways to increase ridership. I think it's going to be a very popular station," said Mayor Tim Perry.

Under an agreement with Metra, Grayslake is required to pay for the land and building of the train station, which is estimated to cost $980,000, according to Darrell Blenniss, assistant to the village manager. The new station will be located at the northwest corner of Lake Street and Washington. In return for covering the costs of the station, Grayslake will earn revenue from daily parking fees and the planned retail development surrounding the area.

An estimated $191,000 was budgeted in 2001 from parking fees at the Grayslake train station located near Lake Street. The new station parking lot will accommodate 1,000 spaces.

"Parking and convenience are the key, the people will flock to it," said Perry.

Metra's "New Start" expansion includes a second set of tracks, 12 more trains, new stations at Franklin Park, Schiller Park and Rosemont, plus a transfer to the Northwest commuter line. Also, improved signals will be installed between the 42-mile Wisconsin Central portion of the route between Antioch and Franklin Park, which is a busy freight corridor.

"Ridership has exceeded our original projections. We are addressing exactly that with adding more trains since ridership will only continue to increase," said Tom Miller, a spokesperson for Metra.

A complaint that several commuters had about the North Central line was its lack of inbound and outbound schedules. The addition of six inbound and six outbound trains will provide more train time choices and opportunities for commuters to take the train, said Miller.

The expansion and improvements agreement between Metra and the U.S. Department of Transportation are a three-part plan totaling $558 million. Other lines who will receive funding include Chicago-Orland Park SouthWest Service and Chicago-Geneva Union Pacific West.

The North Central line opened in 1996, becoming Chicago's first new commuter service in 70 years.

Open auditions for play at Greenbelt Cultural Center

In honor of Black History Month, the Lake County Forest Preserves' Greenbelt Cultural Center and the Lake County Urban League will produce the play, "Martin Said So," written by Wanda Schell and Kenny Bento. Directed by Don Miller, five performances of the play will be offered Feb. 15-17, 2002.

This moving drama tells the story of four generations of families as they were affected by the Civil Rights movement of the 1950s and 1960s. Blending historical fact with strong emotion and dramatic conflict, the play demonstrates the influence of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Malcom X.

Open auditions for eight roles will be held on Nov. 15 and 16, from 7-9 p.m. and Nov. 17, from noon-2 p.m., at the Lake County Urban League, 122 Madison Ave., Waukegan. Both equity and non-equity actors are needed. Actors should prepare a three-minute dramatic monologue and will be asked to do a cold reading.

For detailed audition information or role requirements for "Martin Said So," call the Greenbelt Cultural Center at 847-689-1600 or the Lake County Urban League at 847-249-3770.

When Interviewing, Savvy Salary Discussions Are Necessary

By Scott T. Fleischmann

The issue of salary always needs to be handled carefully, even when talking to family and friends. But when you are in the interviewing process, special considerations must be given to the timing and methods for discussing compensation. There are three phases to the salary discussion process: information disclosure, expectation management, and final negotiations. Let's look at the first phase.

The first stage takes place early in the interviewing process and is critical to the success of the later phases. The goal in this phase is to get an understanding the standard compensation package for the job for which you are being considered, and to share information about your salary history with the interviewer.

Most interviewers are also trained to ask for your salary requirements in this early phase. This will be done primarily to eliminate candidates from consideration if expectations are different than the company plans to pay an employee for that job. However, at this stage they have not learned enough about you to know all of your skills and experience. Therefore, it is possible that you are being considered for a job that pays either less or more than you should expect for your level of skills and experience. (Although it is not well known, people are eliminated from consideration for jobs because they expect too much and because they expect too little.)

Although you need to use your own words, here is the type of phrase that could be used: "I expect that you would compensate me fairly for the skills and experience that I will be using on the job. At this time I'm not sure of all of the tasks involved nor the value and cost of the benefits. Since I'm more interested in the total compensation than the isolated salary, it may be premature to talk about the compensation at this point."

These are my words and you will probably not be comfortable with them. You may want to use them as a model and modify it to language that is more comfortable for you. The goal is to suggest, graciously but firmly, that you have not yet developed an expectation so you are not yet ready to discuss the details of compensation.

These are the key points of information disclosure, the first phase of the salary discussion process. It is important because the other phases build on it. Over the next two weeks we will look at the other two phases, expectation management and final negotiations.

How To Survive The Job Search
By Nancy Sakol

Q I was just released from my job and I think that I was let go for what my friend said is "wrongfully dismissed". I started this job October 23, 2001 with (name and information withheld), and since that time, anything that could have gone wrong for me did. The second day my child got sick at school and I had to leave to go pick him up. The following Monday, my car broke down and had to be towed and I had no way to get to work because it cost too much to fix and tow the car. I found someone who said they would drive me to work everyday but then I got a ride to work the following day, and had to leave work early because the person that dropped me off that morning had to pick me up early or I wouldn't have a ride home. Then on Friday, I came in to work late because I overslept. That afternoon the company let me go. The things that happened to me were out of my control and I feel the company should have understood that people have problems. It is not like I did something wrong at work. Could you find out the real reason? Do you think they should have let me go? D.K. - (via email)

A Do you think they should have kept you on? Look at it this way. If every employee in the company had the same amount of problems as you did in the course of the two weeks you were employed there, would any work get done in the company, or would the company be under constant disruption of the daily work flow due to lack of employees? Is that fair to the employer who is trying to run the business that employs you? Apparently, you were hired to work a 40 hour week, something that you had yet to do and showed the company that you had established a pattern that they were unable to accept. For the company to have allowed this pattern of yours to continue would have sent a negative message to the other employees that said it's ok... when it is not ok. Were you "wrongfully dismissed"... sorry, but the answer to that is no. Your idea that the company should have understood that people have problems is a bit unfair. While many companies are understanding that things happen, it is not their responsibility to accept it all. Perhaps you should reevaluate the problems that you had in that two week period and decide if there has been a previous pattern with former employers. In other words, have you been terminated from past jobs due to attendance issues? If the answer to this is yes, you need to think about what you can do to commit to a 40 hour work week or search for something that would be part time. If transportation is a problem for you check out employment that would be accessible by public transportation or within walking distance. The answer here is you need to take responsibility for yourself. Depending on other people for rides to work is difficult enough. While you felt it was not your fault that you had no ride to work because your car was towed, and feel it was not your fault because your ride picked up early from work, your employer hired you with the knowledge that you had your own transportation. Your employer also questioned who you are blaming for oversleeping by 4 hours on the day you were terminated? Think about it.

FASHION SHOW EXTRAVAGANZA

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 11th

BENEFITING

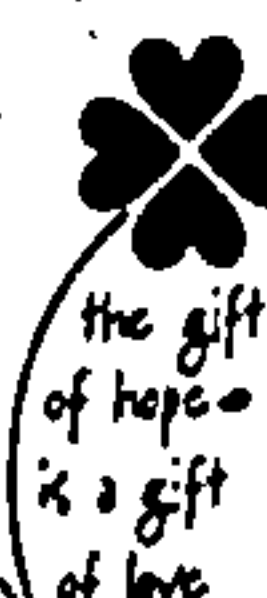

If you have children, know children, or ever were a child, help support the miracle of life at the seventh annual The Gift of Hope is a Gift of Love - Dream A Little Dream fashion show supporting St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. Official sponsors for this event include Rezo Enterprises and Shaker Advertising Agency.

On Sunday, November 11th, over 700 guests will join together at the Westin O'Hare Hotel to view contemporary fashions by Zazzz Productions, furs by York Furriers, and jewelry by Razny Jewelers. Regular and grand raffle viewing begins at 11am, followed by the luncheon, fashions and special surprises including well-known Chicago broadcaster Tom Shaer as Master of Ceremonies. This year, a live auction will also be held for a Bulls or Blackhawks skybox, a fabulous Chimento designer jewelry set, and more.

The premier research and treatment center for children with catastrophic diseases, St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, located in Memphis, Tennessee, has treated thousands of children from across the U.S. and 43 foreign nations. St. Jude, which is non-sectarian and treats children without regard to race, religion or ability to pay, is dedicated to fulfilling the dream of its founder, Danny Thomas - that no child should die in the dawn of life.

Tickets are $50 each, and tables of ten are available. The Westin O'Hare Hotel is located at 6100 N. River Road in Rosemont. Call the Midwest Regional St. Jude Office for tickets: 312-786-0460.
